Pipe Plea Fails

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Supreme Court let stand today a lower-court decision blocking construction of the controversial trans-Alaska oil pipeline.

The court refused without comment or dissent an urgent federal government plea to overturn the lower court.

Thus, the justices left the future of the pipeline from Alaska's North Slope up to Congress.

The court's refusal to reopen the case was described as a "major victory" by B.C. Liberal leader David Anderson, who has headed the Canadian effort to stop the Alaska pipeline.

Anderson said the decision demonstrates that "what Nixon wants isn't necessarily what Nixon gets."

Premier Barrett sent a telegram to Prime Minister Trudeau today requesting a meeting "as soon as possible" with Energy Minister Donald Macdonald to discuss the latest court developmments in the Alaskan oil pipeline issue.

Shoppers Back Boycott

Victorians appear to be rallying behind a week-long boycott of meat which began this morning in cities across North America.

A majority of shoppers questioned this morning in supermarkets in three different areas said they were supporting the boycott, although many had doubts whether it would do much to lower meat prices.

For most, the boycott was a personal decision. Few had signed the boycott petition which is being circulated in the city by a local nurse, Mrs. Margaret Addis.

About 80 per cent of shoppers questioned in a James Bay supermarket said they were not buying meat this week.

"I've been supporting the boycott for three years now," said Joyce Price.

She said she's simply refused to buy meat at the price it's selling these days.

Buying meat is "buying gold," said N. D. Chmara, another boycott supporter. "It may not do any good, but it sure won't do any harm," he said of the consumer protest.

Steve Trach signed Mrs. Addis' petition last week. He said he doesn't eat much meat anyway, so going without it one week isn't a hardship.

Linda Yardley wrote a letter to Prime Minister Trudeau Sunday protesting the high meat prices. She's going to eat fish, chicken and eggs this week.

"There's not much really (the consumer) can do," she said. "But its better than just sitting and saying the prices are too high."

Kelly Grant just arrived in Victoria Friday and hadn't heard about the boycott. When she did, she took all the meat she had in her shopping cart and put it back on the meat counter.

A few people had doubts.

"A week is hardly sufficient to make a difference," said R. C. Mason, a retired chef. "It's got to be longer for them (people in the meat business) to feel the pinch."

Mason, like many older people questioned, said he and his wife eat very little meat at any time. However, he's not boycotting this week.

Shoppers in a Cadboro Bay area supermarket all agreed it would be nice to have cheaper meat, and all were giving full support to this week's meat boycott, but for different reasons.

Mrs. Louise Walton won't buy beef this week, because "it's way too expensive," but she will be eating it.

She cuts down on costs by buying it in bulk and keeps it in the freezer.

Mrs. Irene Margetts solves the problem the same way, "so the boycott won't affect me really. I think it's a good idea, but I don't think it'll do much to lower prices."

Mrs. June Sydenham, however, feels "it's about bloody time" consumers took action and she flatly states she doesn't intend to buy meat this week.

FOOD PRICE BOARD URGED

OTTAWA (CP) — The special Commons committee on food prices recommended today formation of a prices-review board to watch and report on increases along the food supply chain.

The committee, in an interim report required under its terms of creation, said the review board should have the powers needed to look into the price structure and should report to the consumer affairs department. It also would make public reports to one of the standing Commons committees.

Conservative members of the committee dissociated themselves from the report and released a minority document calling for an immediate 90-day freeze on food prices after they leave the farm.

The majority report, endorsed by the 15 Liberal, New Democrat and Social Credit members of the 25-member committee, made these other main recommendations:

—Consumer protection laws, such as those dealing with misleading advertising, should be separate from consumer and corporate affairs department activities dealing with broad industrial policies, handling of monopolies and mergers and concerns about foreign investment.

—The government should consider requiring nutrient content to be displayed on food labels.

—Broadcasters and the print media should be encouraged to increase programs and stories promoting wise consumer buying habits.

—In co-operation with the provinces, Ottawa should investigate ways to get better foods on the tables of low-income families.

Joint Front From West

WINNIPEG (CP) — The four western premiers say they're not ganging up on the rest of Canada but they intend to present a united stand on key issues of concern to the West when they meet Prime Minister Trudeau this summer.

The premiers made it clear following their two-day meeting here they want answers, not just discussion, on national transportation policy and agriculture policy.

The premiers will prepare detailed position papers on freight rates, agriculture, banking and regional economic development for the meeting with Trudeau, tentatively scheduled for July 25-26 in Calgary. They set another meeting among themselves for June 18 in Victoria.

The premiers — New Democrats Dave Barrett of British Columbia, Allan Blakeney of Saskatchewan and Ed Schreyer of Manitoba and Conservative Peter Lougheed of Alberta — also agreed to make the Western premier's conference a permanent institution.

The final western positions on several issues were not settled at the meeting here. The premiers will publish their requests of the federal government at the time of the Victoria meeting, giving the prime minister about one month to prepare his solutions.

Barrett said: "When we meet Ottawa we want to meet on the basis of Yes or No answers to our problems. The results of this meeting is that the Calgary conference is more likely to be a two-way dialogue than a five-way conversation."

Lougheed told a news conference the premiers want more emphasis placed on the country's "growth areas."

Industrial development now is centred in southern Ontario and along the St. Lawrence, and "we want to change that."

"We want to make sure that from now on this nation grows on a much more balanced basis."

Admiral Kidnapped

NOT IN LAOS SAYS OPPEL

Lloyd Oppel returned to his home in Comox Sunday night and told a crowd of well-wishers at the airport he had been treated "badly" during his five-month internment in a Communist prisoner of war camp in Indochina.

Before he was whisked off to St. Joseph Hospital in Comox the 21-year-old missionary told reporters that earlier news reports about his capture and imprisonment were "hoaxes propagated by the administration of North Vietnam."

Oppel's statements were brief but he told the crowd he would "fully elaborate" on his story when released from hospital.

His ailing mother is also in the hospital and Oppel had a joyful reunion with his parents at her bedside.

His father, Magnus Oppel, said today his son is suffering from "a touch of malaria" and the date of his release from hospital would be decided by their family doctor.

"He's as happy as can be," the elder Oppel said, "and he looks as well as can be expected.

Oppel arrived home at 7:20 p.m. Sunday. As he stepped off the Canadian Forces Buffalo aircraft which brought him from McCord Air Force Base in Washington, one arm clutched a small Canadian flag, the other was around his brother, Fred, who leapt up the gangway to meet him.

He said he wanted to refute earlier published reports of his capture.

"Number one, I was captured by North Vietnamese regular soldiers. I was not captured by the Pathet Lao."

"Secondly, I was interned in North Vietnam. I had never been interned in Laos.

"Thirdly, there was a rumor going around that I was told I was a collaborator with American imperialism and was treated as an American."

Bombing Hanoi Still Open: U.S.

Times News Services

The United States could resume bombing and mining the North Vietnamese heartland if Hanoi refuses to abide by the ceasefire provisions Defence Secretary Elliot Richardson said Sunday.

The U.S. is also continuing its bombing campaign in Cambodia "to try to encourage" the Communists to observe the ceasefire in that country, Richardson said.

Richardson listed renewed bombing and other U.S. military measures used in the past as "possibilities" still open to the U.S. and indicated they were the options President Nixon had in mind when he cautioned North Vietnam recently about the "serious consequences" of continued ceasefire violations.

In Cambodia, Richardson said "the other side has only to carry out its obligations, and U.S. support — and of course it is only air support — can cease."

Richardson argued there was no need for Congressional approval of the air raids over Cambodia because "this is in effect a follow-up in a small and limited way of what we were doing before the ceasefire."

He said he believed it would be "very difficult in present

Guaranteed Jobs Studied By Manitoba

WINNIPEG (CP) — The NDP government has thrown up for discussion proposals for economic reforms ranging from establishment of a Manitoba banking system to a government guarantee of jobs for all who want them.

The first volume of Guidelines for the Seventies, a policy paper tabled in the legislature today by Premier Ed Schreyer, is sure to be an issue in the provincial general election expected this year.

The 147-page volume also proposes moves to encourage rural and northern areas residents to stay where they are and further redistribution of wealth through taxation based on ability to pay. A general aim is greater equality of the human condition.

It recommends substantial cuts in property taxes on farms and homes and urges increased public financing of economic growth through a local form of municipal Crown corporation and, where need is shown, through provincial Crown corporations.

Mr. Schreyer, in an accompanying statement, said the paper is not a dogmatic declaration of intent but is a set of alternative policy principles and aims, presented for analysis and discussion. Two more volumes will be released soon.

The report suggests public involvement in industry to improve the position of low-wage workers, and development of a more even industrial balance between Manitoba's regions.

For farmers, it proposes producers' marketing boards and lowering production costs through a variety of co-operative arrangements. It also advocates public regulation of food prices to get fair prices for producers and consumers.

On natural resources, the paper says all future mineral development should take into account social as well as economic costs, and public services should be paid for by the private interests which would benefit.

STOP BUGGING PORPOISES!

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Tuna fishermen have been told by the national oceanic and atmospheric administration to stop bugging porpoises.

The agency issued a new regulation Sunday prohibiting anyone from putting a radio transmitter on the back of a porpoise.

A spokesman said the action was taken because of reports that some fishermen were using the porpoises to help them track schools of tuna.

Millionaire Ordered Deported

OTTAWA (CP) — An eight-year court battle ended today when the Supreme Court of Canada ordered millionaire Robert Brooks deported from Canada.

Brooks, now living in Vancouver, came here as a landed immigrant in 1963. The immigration department accused him of giving false and misleading information in his application and after a hearing that dragged on for four years, he was ordered deported.

Brooks then appealed to the immigration appeal board which in 1971 upheld his appeal and allowed him to stay. The government then appealed to the Supreme Court.

Brooks and Harry Stonehill, his business associate, were deported from the Philippines by presidential order following accusations that they had committed a number of criminal acts ranging from fraud to influence peddling.

Late Aliens Held

Times News Service

TORONTO — About 70 people were arrested during the weekend when they appeared at Toronto immigration headquarters to register as aliens, the Toronto Star reported today.

The arrests occurred amid a rush by more than 2,000 people to register before a March 31 deadline. The deadline had been set for visitors to Canada who arrived prior to Jan. 1 and had failed to register as aliens.

Manpower and Immigration Minister Robert Andras was quoted by the Star from Ottawa as saying it was his "understanding" that those arrested had missed previous deadlines to appear for immigration hearings.

Andras was previously reported to have said the federal government would "apply a very gentle hand" to visitors without landed status who complied with the government's program of voluntary registration.

The government has estimated there are 50,000 to 100,000 persons who arrived in Canada as visitors before Jan. 1 and have overstayed their official welcome.

An official in the Victoria immigration office said there were no arrests here and the office had a "quiet" day, dealing mainly with people who wanted to clarify their status. The office stayed open until midnight.

First Socred Hopeful

BURNABY (CP) — James P. R. Mason, 50, an accountant, has become the first announced candidate to take over the leadership of the provincial Social Credit Party from W. A. C. Bennett.

The party plans to hold a leadership convention in November to pick a successor to Bennett, who has announced he will step down as leader.

Mason has been a member of the provincial Social Credit League since 1956 and is a former vice-president of the league. He was also president of the Burnaby Social Credit Association for two years.

He was also an unsuccessful Social Credit candidate in the 1963 federal election in Vancouver Quadra.

Nixon Frees Mafia Boss

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — A high-ranking leader in the Mafia "family" of the late Vito Genovese who had been tagged by the U.S. justice department as "violent . . . homicidal . . . a man who orders executions," was freed from prison last Christmas on special orders from President Nixon, according to a story in the Long Island newspaper Newsday.

According to the FBI, Angelo "Gyp" DeCarlo has gone right back to his old gambling and loansharking business.

Furthermore, FBI and justice department officials claim that the release was approved by the president without getting prior clearance from them.

"This is a very bad buy," said one justice department official, "with a history of political connections all laid out on public record."

DeCarlo had served less than two years of a 12-year sentence before the release which came on the grounds of "terminal illness."

The mobster, aged 70, has a history of diabetes, heart trouble and assorted problems stemming from cancer surgery which apparently was not too successful.

"I don't care how sick he is; putting him back on the street is not a routine thing, certainly not with an administration as tough as this one is on criminals," said the justice department man.

"Besides," he added, "the prison service has some extremely good medical facilities."

DeCarlo's illnesses, according to the FBI, have not prevented him from attending organized crime meetings with former associates in out-of-the-way locations since his release from jail.

The other thing puzzling law enforcement officials about DeCarlo's presidential pardon is the fact that it was one of only five granted by Nixon last year.

"Most people pardoned really went through a sieve" said the justice department man. "For a guy like DeCarlo to get through someone had to make a bigger hole."

. . . MEAT BOYCOTT

just hope something like this out meat completely though. I will help bring the prices down."

It was too early to tell how the boycott would affect sales, however, according to the man behind the meat counter, Lyle Buchanan.

He reports sales were far better than usual on Friday and Saturday because most women "got stocked up on meat for the week because they wouldn't want their friends to see them shopping for meat during the week."

"The boycott won't work; it's just complaining," he said.

EVERYTHING UP

"They're all sitting at home with the meat they bought to hold them over the week and what will it prove," he asked.

"The only reason they boycott food, is that they're buying it every day and so they notice the price going up; but everything is going up. Take these shoes for instance . . ."

Although nearly all shoppers surveyed at a supermarket near the Oak Bay junction are boycotting meat, the store's butcher isn't worried.

"We are optimistic," he said. "We are loading up the cart as usual. It will sell."

Mrs. Gladys Humby, 60, agrees with the butcher. She has joined the boycott although she thinks it is bound to fail because "so many people would buy meat even if it cost $10 a pound."

"They don't care about the little people."

Mrs. Humby never buys steak at any time because she can't afford it and says meat prices in general are "getting terrible."

FREEZER FULL

Al Smith, 18, said his family won't buy meat this week but they won't go meatless.

"We have a freezer full of moose meat," Smith said.

Jean Laitnen, 16, said her mother planned to feed the family beans and macaroni all week to protest the high cost of meat.

Mrs. Jean McGaghey was shopping for fish, beans and macaroni. McGaghey said high food prices had already caused her to cut down portions at mealtimes.

"We've cut down on food in the last few weeks," she said.

Only two out of 10 shoppers surveyed planned to ignore the boycott. One said she supported the idea but boarded two university students who would expect meat as usual.

The other thinks people need meat and that prices here are within reason compared to prices in Europe. Both declined to give their names.

Meanwhile, in Toronto, farmers began today to send reduced shipments of pork to Metropolitan Toronto.

One of the apparent effects of the boycott was a drop in dealings at the Toronto livestock exchange. The morning livestock report showed only 1,151 slaughter cattle and 1,000 of these were replacement cattle. Officials said the receipts were "very light."

In the U.S., there was some reflection of housewive's stay-away tactics in markets for meat on the hoof today.

Hog prices were slightly off at principal midwest markets in early trading, dropping as much as $4 per hundred pounds at the big East St. Louis, Ill., market, and at Joliet, Ill., and as much as $3 at Peoria, Ill.

Meat packers, some of whom have decreed plant layoffs until the situation settles down, watched apprehensively for trends in beef marketing. But beef prices edged $1 to $1.50 higher at principal markets.

THE BETTER HALF By Barnes

. . . JOB PLAN

The report has sharp words on the distribution of wealth.

It says in the four years since 1969, when the NDP ousted the Progressive Conservative government of Walter Weir, there has been a 39-per-cent rise in total personal income and a 40-per-cent increase in gross provincial output, to an estimated $5 billion at the end of 1973.

Yet 21 per cent of all Manitoba families earned less than $3,000 and 30 per cent earned less than $4,000 in 1971. The paper says the government intends to decrease further the reliance on property taxation that aggravated these people's plight in the past.

JOBS FOR ALL

Under the guaranteed employment proposal, the provincial government would ensure there is work at the prevailing local wage levels, the minimum wage or better, for anyone able and willing to take the job.

The jobs created would be make-work projects but would meet genuine social needs while alleviating short-term unemployment. For example, some could build or renovate houses while others provided home services for the elderly.

Special measures would be needed to find jobs for the 16,000 to 28,000 who have never been in the labor force or who have left it, and the 15,000 physically or mentally handicapped who could do some work if given a chance.

Except the estimated 2,000 hard-core unemployed, who would not be involved in the program, unemployment could be eliminated well before the end of the decade.

Look to Alberta.

The proposed Manitoga banking system would be styled after Alberta's 30-year-old treasury branch system, accepting deposits from people, making loans to the public and private sectors and handling a big part of government financial business.

The paper says such a system would help staunch the flow of financial resources from Manitoba, make capital more accessible to local development and, through competition, probably would result in lower commercial borrowing costs.

It says the government, which launched compulsory pre-paid auto insurance 17 months ago, intends to investigate the possibility of a public presence in fire and life insurance.

The study's two other volumes will deal with housing, health and social services, education, regional perspective and decentralizing of government services.

APARTHEID 'A CRIME'

GENEVA (UPI) — The United Nations Commission on Human Rights today approved a draft convention seeking to make apartheid — the strict racial segregation policy of South Africa — "A crime against humanity."

The United States and Britain voted against the draft, citing legal and technical reasons, while France, Italy, the Netherlands, Austria and Norway abstained for similar reasons.

The final vote was 21 in favor, two against and five abstentions.

circumstances" for the Cambodian government to survive without U.S. air support. He said the collapse of the Cambodian government would have a "significant" effect on South Vietnam because the Communists then would be able to resupply their forces through the Cambodian ports on the Gulf of Siam.

Meanwhile, U.S. F111 fighter jets blasted advancing Communist lines on embattled Highway 2 in Cambodia today, but succeeded only in covering the retreat of government forces as Communist troops stormed into the district town of Chambak only 20 miles south of Phnom Penh.

Field officers said the U.S. warplanes made at least eight sorties against the town of Chambak itself before returning to their bases in Thailand.

Communist units intensified offensive operations on every front today, and well informed military sources said the daily U.S. B-52 and F111 strikes have completely failed to stem the current Communist push.

During the past two months, Communist units have managed to sever every major supply route feeding the Cambodian capital, including highways 1, 2, 3 and 4, and the nation's most important supply artery, the Mekong River.

In Vietnam, hostilities at a government ranger camp 50 miles north of Saigon continued today to thwart plans by an international observer team to investigate South Vietnamese allegations of ceasefire violations there.

The South Vietnamese and the Viet Cong's Provisional Revolutionary Government have not responded to a request Saturday by the International Commission of Control and supervision ICCS to stop fighting to allow an observer team into the area, commission sources said.

In Saigon, demonstrators blocked the entrance to the headquarters of the ICCS to protest the commission's inability to stop fighting at the besieged outpost.

South Vietnamese sources reported that the government side at the Joint Military Commission with the PRG has announced it will attend no further meetings until the problem of the Tong Le Chan camp is solved.

The South Vietnamese command said the camp came under another shelling attack Sunday night which killed two defenders and wounded 12.

LONDON (Reuter) — A new era of cut-price air travel opened today with a flight to Canada at what was believed to be one of the lowest trans-atlantic fares ever.

Some passengers aboard the DC-10 jetliner run by Laker Airways of Britain were paying as little as £45 (about $108) for a round trip to Toronto from Manchester.

The flight was the first under the new system of Advanced Booking Charters (ABC) agreed to by the Canadian, British and American governments.

The system replaced the old affinity-group charters whereby cheap travel was available to members of clubs or other organized bodies. In recent years, the group membership rules were abused so frequently that the scheme fell into disrepute.

A traveller can fly ABC simply by buying his ticket three months in advance. A tour operator books blocks of seats with the big airlines at not less than 40 a time. Minimum stay at the destination is 14 days.

The new charters came into force Monday after months of delicate negotiations between the British and American governments and airlines.

VETOED ONE SCHEME

In general, the U.S. airlines considered the British were setting fare levels too low. They refused to accept the British proposal for another scheme under which even scheduled flights could be booked at a sharp discount by booking three months in advance.

The first of the cheap charters to New York starts Tuesday with a tour operated by a subsidiary of British Overseas Airways.

The London-to-New York charter fare ranges from £58 ($145) round trip in the low season to £75 ($187.50) in peak time. One charter operator, Air Fair, is offering London-to-New York trips at £57 ($142.50) return under semi-first-class conditions aboard aircrait of the major airlines.

The boom in transatlantic travel is expected to be so great that a private British airline, British Caledonian Airways Ltd. has started up in competition with BOAC as the second major British-flag carrier on the North Atlantic.

The competition will be intense and the Caledonian believes it may take three years before it starts to break even on the Atlantic routes.

Ecumenical Bible

NEW YORK (UPI) — The first version of the Bible to be approved for use by all three major branches of Christianity was published in the United States today.

The English-language Revised Standard Version Common Bible, published by the National Council of Churches, was endorsed by prelates of the Roman Catholic, Protestant and Eastern Orthodox churches.

The text of the new Bible is basically that of the revised standard version of the Old and New Testaments, published in 1952, but it also includes the Apocrypha—Old Testament books accepted by the Catholic and Orthodox churches but not by the Protestants.

Alberni Boy Fights On

A 12-year-old Port Alberni boy continues to fight for his life in Victoria General Hospital today after a Friday night fire which claimed the lives of three children.

Randy's brother, Alexander, 9, his sister, Diame, 7, and Marilyn Sutherland, 4, were killed. His mother, Delores Morgan, 31, is in satisfactory condition in Port Alberni.

ANOTHER WALL was added to the University of Victoria's Cornett Building Sunday as April Fool's Day pranksters plastered cement blocks across a hallway connecting the history and economics departments. History department secretaries Mrs. Darlene Robertson (left) and Mrs. Gail Jonat surveyed the addition this morning before it was chipped away. Jokesters also put an old car on top of the brick podium outside the MacLaurin Building. (Irving Strickland photo).

34 Sailors Saved

AIXMNOLULU (UPI) — The 34 crewmen of the Silver Dove were rescued Sunday, but the huge cargo vessel was sinking today in the Pacific. Twenty-seven crewmen were plucked from lifeboats by the coast guard cutter North Wind. They had spent the night in the boats, bobbing on the cold seas.

REAL BABY-FACE TOUGH GUY

NORTH SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — Frederick Bennett II can do five pushups and lift a 15-pound barbell with ease — which is pretty good for someone 15 months old.

Freddie is the youngest of five children of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Bennett of North Syracuse and is the only boy.

"I promised myself if I ever had a son, I would start him on an exercise program right away," said Bennett.

The program began the day the baby came home from the hospital. Mrs. Bennett "exercised Freddie every morning for five or six minutes. Her husband would give the infant a 10-minute workout after returning home from his job at a foundry.

"But I don't let him strain himself," his father said.

Mrs. Bennett said some friends have expressed concern that the baby's health might be damaged by the exertion "but our pediatrician isn't concerned we're doing Freddie any harm."

"Actually, he's rather amazed to have such a strong, healthy young patient.

"The only time I really have problems, though, is when I want to dress him and he's not interested," Mrs. Bennett said. "He's so strong it's almost impossible if he doesn't co-operate."

Mississippi Floods Still Feared

Times News Services

Flood conditions worsened today along the rain-swollen Mississippi River and in the southern United States, where torrential rains accompanied by tornadoes battered portions of two states during the weekend.

Snow was still piling up in the southwest, and strong winds whipped sandstorms in southwestern areas not hit by the snow.

Heavy snow warnings were posted for the mountains of southwest and central Colorado, central and western Arizona and New Mexico.

More than a foot of new snow fell Sunday in Utah.

Flood watches were posted for portions of southern New England, where a weekend thunderstorm dumped up to 3½ inches of rain.

Damage could run as high as several hundred million dollars from tornadoes that killed eight persons and injured around 500 others in Georgia, South Carolina and Virginia.

The cost in Georgia alone was estimated at $100 million by Governor Jimmy Carter, who said, "this, economically speaking, is the worst natural disaster we've ever had in this state."

"It was just pitiful," Carter said Sunday after taking a helicopter tour of the damaged areas.

"At one area, in Athens, people were standing around the rubble of their homes. Many people, little children and adults, were cut and bandaged."

When Few Speak for Many

Saturday's regional hospital referendum reversed the old belief that a light vote brings out only the "no" voters. Despite a disgracefully small turnout of only 11 per cent of eligible voters, the various sections of the Capital Regional District voted nearly 84 per cent in favor of the $22.5 million building and improvement fund. Only half of the money must be raised directly by the Region, the rest will come from provincial revenues.

The small turnout has raised the question of whether hospital building referendums should be put before the public, or whether the Regional or provincial government should assess the need and go ahead with the necessary programs without reference to the public. Certainly a turnout of 11 per cent cannot be called representative of the general public, or of the property taxpayers who must foot the bills. But the strongly affirmative voice on Saturday indicates that among all those interested enough to speak, there is excellent support for improved hospital facilities.

This is hardly surprising, of course, since the whole Region is years behind in its hospital-building plans. There are not sufficient beds available for acute care, and many of those now in use need more up-to-date facilities. Most of the money voted last Saturday will go for new and rehabilitated accommodation. Hospitals and equipment are among the community assets which should be kept up to modern standards. It would be encouraging if more than 9 per cent of the eligible voters would show recognition of this important fact.

The provincial and Regional authorities, however, now have their go-ahead signal. It will be up to them to spend the money wisely and effectively, for the referendum was loosely worded in order to permit considerable leeway in setting priorities and projects. On their record will depend public approval of future hospital expenditures, regardless of the form in which they are presented to the people.

In the other main balloting of the day, the voters of Victoria elected Mr. Malcolm Anderson to finish out the aldermanic term of the late Mr. Ove Witt. Mr. Anderson, whose name has appeared on ballot papers in this area before, campaigned on a promise to support controlled development of the city, as the alternative to certain deterioration. He hopes to tap federal and provincial funds for city purposes. Mr. Anderson has shown a close interest in civic affairs and should make a good contribution to Council at a time when the problems of growth, and particularly the direction of community development, are of prime importance.

A Case of Destruction by Improvement

British Columbia is no stranger to the adverse effects of some of its engineering triumphs—as witness Premier Barrett's complaint against "the mess that is known as Williston Lake", and earlier criticism of damage in Alberta after the water was impounded.

But the problems created for man by man in similar projects may be expected to increase if the experience of a broad section of Florida finds, as it probably will, parallels elsewhere in the world.

During the last decade the Kissimmee River in that state was made into a canal, primarily as a flood control measure, at a cost of $30 million. Now the legislators are being asked to convert it back to a river for an estimated cost of $88 million.

The river that at one time meandered through marshlands which helped to purify its waters, now rushes directly into Lake Okeechobee, the principal water reservoir for both the populous Gold Coast from Palm Beach to Miami and also for the wildlife areas including Everglades National Park. And because it flows so swiftly, carrying the wastes of a more densely populated area, resulting from the original diversion and the drainage of the swamps, the canal is adding to the pollution of the lake.

The problem is more dramatic in Florida, mainly because larger populations are involved, than any similar development might be in British Columbia. But the experience in the state should not be overlooked in this province where many of our watersheds and water courses have been switched around to suit particular needs, conceivably at costs in ecological change at which so far we can only guess.

The Evil Phoenix

A report from Paris reveals that a Dutch source is now pushing a new and dangerous form of heroin in the French capital, apparently having taken over the market from Marseilles suppliers following a severe crackdown, including seizures and enforced factory closures in the latter city.

The development brings a familiar but disheartening comment from Dr. Claude Olievenstein, head of the Paris medical centre for young addicts.

"When one drug ring is smashed," he says, "another springs up in a few months. Maybe the market has been dried up in Marseilles, but in Paris it is worse than ever, with the invasion of a new and more dangerous form of heroin."

His informed statement emphasizes the deficiency in present methods of handling the narcotic addiction problem. One source of supply can be wiped out only to be replaced by another. And this is the case because the returns from illicit traffic in narcotics are so lucrative that no matter how severe the penalties for peddlers who are caught, others are willing to take the risk to cash in on the exorbitant profits.

If the big money were taken out of the business, there would be little incentive for the dealer to remain in operation. How that inducement to illegal trade is to be removed lacks a proven answer, but it is a basic problem that must be solved if the broader ramifications of narcotic addiction are to be eliminated.

LETTERS FROM OUR READERS

Straight Case

In reply to a copy of a letter received from K. W. Robertson dated March 22, 1973:

I fail to see that your headline was in any way biased reporting. It appeared to me to be a straight case of factual reporting of what occurred at a meeting of the School Board of School District 61.

I cannot speak for Mr. Donald, but I am quite sure he would agree with me when I say I did not in any way imply that teachers were getting away with something. All I asked was that these meetings be arranged so they did not conflict with instructional time.

As regards the number of hours per week, one has heard for a number of years that teachers wished to be recognized as professionals. If this is so then surely a professional does not count the number of hours per week that is required to improve his or her profession. You only have to look at the medical profession to see this is so. As for report cards, these are only issued three times per school year so surely cannot be all that time-consuming; parent-teacher interviews last approximately fifteen minutes at the most. As for constant curriculum changes mentioned, these are probably done on the advice of members of the so-called "teaching profession."

I would suggest to K. W. Robertson that not too many professions or trades close down for two months each summer, a week at Easter and a week at Christmas.

I further suggest if K. W. Robertson finds the requirements for his or her chosen occupation so time-consuming that it is unbearable, a solution would be to offer a resignation to the school board. — Frank Boddy, 310 Clifton Terrace.

Sadly Lacking

Do Victorians only back winners?

If the reporting by press and radio of the last hockey game and Awards Night of the Western Canada Major Junior Hockey League is any indication then the above statement is true.

Sadly lacking in space or time was even a fond farewell cheer for excellent entertainment, often in the face of adversity for our boys of the team.

These young men in our opinion give, dollar for dollar, more fun, laughter and sometimes tears, than any other contact sport. Sad isn't it that this city remains indifferent to losers?

I would very much like to hear from hockey fans in answer to this question.

Meanwhile, good luck boys, and thanks for the memories. Till next season — (Mrs.) J. V. Ebner, 1687 Stanhope Place.

Waterfront

When are the people of Victoria going to realize that its potential as the beautiful city it should and could be lies, at least partly, in the development of its waterfront, particularly the Inner Harbour, in a manner which will accommodate some of the recreational needs of the general populace rather than the financial gain of a few money-hungry developers. There should be completely open public access to the waterfront. No one man or company should have the right to block this access and mar the appearance of Victoria's shoreline with such structures as the proposed Reid Centre.

For Harbor Improvement

There are people in this city who have intelligent suggestions for the creation and preservation of a beautiful and distinctive waterfront. We would do well to listen to them. — (Miss) M. A. Brown, 532 Dallas Rd.

Further Observations

The March 24 Times article pointing out the apartment dwellers' poor representation in City Hall was most revealing. However, further observations might have been put forward.

Is it surprising that a majority of the members of the various councils, commission, boards and panels are in the "property industry" when said industry, is, by far, the largest in the province?

Was it noted that these same people do not live in apartments because they have families, and suitable apartment accommodation is simply not available? Many have lived in apartments when they were younger. Many will no doubt be attracted to apartment living when they are older and freed from parental responsibilities. Perhaps it should be observed that occupants of apartments are largely comprised of those segments of the adult population who are either not ready for responsibility, or who have already made their contribution. This would explain why they are not represented in proportion to their numbers.

Is the preponderance of men not due to the dearth of women with the necessary combination of training and desire? Is a man's level of income not a reflection of his intellect and ambition?

Your City Hall reporter is to be commended for his effort. More articles of this nature are necessary if increased public participation in municipal affairs is to be stimulated, it would help though if all the facts could be trusted for accuracy. For example, the Advisory Design Panel consists of six members — not five, as reported. John A. Di Castri, chairman (property industry, resident in Oak Bay) was missed. Two of the panel members listed as residing in Oak Bay actually live in Saanich. Mrs. Graham, listed as "housewife," also happens to hold impressive credentials as an architect. — A. E. Bowers, 2502 Sinclair Rd.

Timid Men

The curse of Canada today is the manner in which we have become slaves of security. In effect, we continue to relinquish our freedoms, rights, drives, dreams and desires in return for welfarism, grants, subsidies and give-aways.

All too often the price of security is acceptance of the commonplace standard of the common man — the conformity of the third-rate. Yet it was not the apathy and smugness of security that got the wheel and polio vaccine invented, but the insecurity of hunger and disease. It was the insecurity of religious persecution which brought the Plymouth Pilgrims to the New World. The timid stayed home, compromising their beliefs and relinquishing part of their freedom.

Today, the socialist rides to power on the backs of timid men who have made security their god. In the process, they would have all citizens enslaved in the "security" of a dictatorship that recognizes neither individual human rights nor the principles of freedom which date back to the Magna Carta. — Patricia Young, Vancouver, B.C.

MAURICE WESTERN

Gold: In Perpetual Emergency

OTTAWA — Elsewhere in the developed and undeveloped world, emergencies come and emergencies go. The distinctively Canadian gold mining emergency goes on forever. It is perhaps even more remarkable that our four political parties, after all these years, can still field members of Parliament prepared to discuss it at regular intervals in solemn tones and with straight faces.

This is an age of change, as Alastair Gillespie reminded the Montreal Chamber of Commerce last week. But some things endure, as Donald Macdonald demonstrated on Thursday in his speech on the bill extending the gold mining emergency legislation for another three years. The passage of 25 years and of approximately $300 million subsidy dollars from the pockets of taxpayers to those of the gold mining interests has not lessened the determination of government and parliament to stand on guard for this singulary afflicted industry.

Survival Capacity

Plainly, it is no ordinary affliction. What distinguishes this emergency is its survival capacity. Gold prices may be low or they may be high; world production may go up or down; times may be good or bad, but the emergency always comes through unscathed. Invariably, and sometimes at the last minute, Parliament comes to the rescue. Whatever the passing appearances, however distant apparent threats, members recognize their duty and extend the legal emergency, usually for three years.

It may appear odd to citizens more concerned with other matters the gold emergency has been placed so high on the Government's priority list. The degree of distress in the industry is indicated in part by the fact that no applications for assistance were received last year. The danger of shut-downs does not appear imminent; such has been the activity of the gnomes of Zurich and other patrons of the industry that gold, which used to sell for about $35 an ounce, reached $91.50 on the free market last week. Indeed, there have been reports that Swiss bankers anticipate a price exceeding $100 and Mr. Macdonald noted, without comment, the prediction of Eliot Janeqay that it may go to $130.

Much of the gold produced is not destined for central banks; it goes to industry and the arts. Demand, according to Mr. Macdonald, is increasing, while world output decreased last year by some 6 per cent. In the world of wheat, such a combination would be considered favorable; in the case of gold it is ominous enough to demand the attention of Parliament.

DONALD MACDONALD

Among non-official persons, there may even be a suspicion that the gold crisis is imaginary; that what passes for crisis is in fact a paper emergency. We have had a series of monetary disturbances followed in each case by efforts to patch up an international system which at one time worked very well. Every time the patches come off, confidence in paper goes down and the price of gold goes up. But the parliamentary remedy is to extend the legal life of the gold emergency, as members did last week.

It is clear that to moderns as to the ancients gold is unique. This is apparent from the different ways in which governments and Parliaments react to different emergency situations. In respect to gold, the response is decisive and predictable; the Government does exactly what it has been doing since 1948.

As would be expected in a time of inflation, there is no shortage of emergency situations; they are in fact discerned by members of Parliament almost every day. While Jean-Luc Pepin was trade minister, a copper shortage threatened and this was effectively dealt with by temporary export controls. Other responses are less effective.

The matter of steel price increases was brought up on Wednesday. Herb Gray commented rather vaguely that they might have some relevance to combines law. Formerly, the matter would have been referred to the Prices and Incomes Commission, with approximately the same results.

Lumber Exports

Also on Wednesday, Alvin Hamilton asked for export restrictions on lumber. There have been complaints of shortages, especially on the prairie. According to another western member, some dealers are reluctant even to sell existing stocks because of rising replacement costs. The answer which finally emerged was that the matter is "under constant review" as it has presumably been for the past two years.

The contrast is somewhat startling because it can usually be shown that the commodities mentioned in such parliamentary protestations are of much more general interest than is gold. There is, however, one notable difference. After 25 years of experience, Ministers know by unerring instinct what should be done for the yellow metal. The sovereign remedy, in any circumstances, is to extend the legal emergency. At the current rate of progress, it will probably continue to haunt the country well into the 21st century.

Not More Than a Smidgen?

You can put me down as one of the many who are glad to see the Visitors' Bureau reach its inevitable demise. Maybe it will be replaced with something better, and maybe it will not, but whatever happens in the future, one thing is certain, any type of organization the sole purpose of which is to attract the business of tourists, should not under any circumstances receive one penny of public funds. For far too many years now the Tourist Bureau has been a leech on the back of the local taxpayers. Furthermore I admire and applaud the stand that certain local politicians have taken against it in the past.

The old cliche that the city as a whole benefits from tourism, is so time-worn and antiquated that it has now become a nauseating stuck record. The fact is that Greater Victoria as a whole benefits no more from tourism in the long haul than it does from any other business, but other businesses or their organizations are not subsidized from public funds.

A big portion of the local tourist industry is owned by foreigners anyway, and the profits therefore not only go out of the area, but out of the country also. Then another large segment is owned by interests that are Canadian, but located outside the Victoria area, and those profits therefore leave the area also. The section of the tourist industry that is locally owned is quite small, and even those owners in most cases spend the winter outside of the Greater Victoria area, and therefore spend a lot of their profits benefiting other parts of Canada, or other countries.

Certainly wages are paid by the local tourist industry, but they pay only the minimum of wages, and reap the greatest of profits. Most of the wage earners are part-time help, usually students doing summer work, many of whom come here just to work and do not live here, and here again much of their earnings goes outside of the immediate area.

I do not wish to create the impression that I deny the tourist industry its profits, nor the wage earners their wages, because I do not. But let us have no more of this crying that they cannot afford to finance their own promotional facilities, under the guise that it benefits the whole area. In no way does the whole area benefit more than a mere smidgen from the tourist industry, and in no way should the taxpayer have to finance this or any other type of business. The law of the business jungle is "Succeed or get out," and this applies equally to tourism as to anything else. — Harold Morton, P.O. Box 1701.

60 YEARS AGO

From The Times of April 2, 1913:

LONDON — Following a suggestion made by Baron von Horst, of San Francisco, and a number of Americans, English suffragettes are collecting various instruments used in the forcible feeding of prisoners. These include screws and pliers used to force the jaws apart, feeding tubes and other utensils. The collection has been lent by doctors friendly to the suffragettes. It will be exhibited in American cities and later offered as a gift to the Smithsonian Institution.

A true bill against Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst was returned today by the grand jury at the Old Bailey sessions, on the charge of incitement to commit damage. The charge followed the destruction of the country residence of Chancellor Lloyd George.

The Population Explosion Gets Louder and Louder

By JAMES P. STERBA
New York Times

KAMAN, India — There are about 207,000 more people on earth today than there were yesterday. By the end of a week there will be nearly 1.5 million more.

A few will grow up healthy, educated and comfortable in prosperous countries like the United States, where they will have small, planned families.

Most will grow up in a daily struggle to survive in poor countries like India. They too will have families, but much larger ones.

The unchecked and accelerating growth of the human population goes on, setting a frightening record each day. Today, despite the most vigorous attempts in history to reverse the trend, there are more desperately poor people than ever. Their numbers, more than anything else, have thwarted a postwar developement effort timed at improving their lot.

In Asia they live beyond the bubbles of affluence and showcases of new prosperity that most Western travelers view as evidence of the success of postwar development. One does not have to travel far beyond those bubbles to get the other view.

First of Two Articles

Even among those who are somewhat more prosperous, the pressures of population take their toll. India's teeming population was recently increased here in Kamen, a village of about 1,200 people 35 miles north of Bombay, by the birth of a twinkly-eyed girl named Padmini. She was the sixth child of Mr. and Mrs. Balaram Pandurang Wadkar, who were proud parents even though a boy might have provided more security for their old age.

Pandmini was born a few weeks ago on a rope bed in the biggest house in this village of about 1,200 people 35 miles north of Bombay. She became the 22nd occupant of the house, a six-room brick structure built in 1941 by her grandfather. His children and their families share it now.

Madhu Atmaram Kaman Kar, as first son, is the head of the household and owns 40 acres of rice land and a small bricks works. A man of wealth and influence in the village, he promotes family planning and helped it achieve its official goal last year by talking 75 men into being sterilized by vasectomy.

They were among roughly a million Indian men and women sterilized last year in what is the world's most active sterilization program. The total was hardly enough. Ten times that many Indians reach the age of fertility every year and there are already nearly 100 million couples of childbearing age — 15 to 45.

On the day Padmini was born 54,000 babies were born in India, which has a population of 550 million. About 17,000 people died, for an increase of roughly 37,000 new mouths to feed that day and every day. In a year the increase is more than 15 million.

Padmini was one of some 340,000 babies born across the world — population 3.8 billion — on that day. About 135,000 people died, for a net increase of 207,000. In a year that is more than 75 million — four Californias or one Bangladesh.

More than any other factor, population has been charged with sabotaging the most concerted effort in human history to improve the lot of the impoverished majorities in underdeveloped countries — hundreds of millions of people in Asia, Africa and Latin America locked into a web of malnutrition, sickness, illiteracy and economic stagnation.

The development effort began slowly after World War II, when many colonies gained independence. It accelerated in the 1950s and '60s as the giants of capitalism and communism waged intense contests for influence.

Though success was in the air, with more people healthier and better educated and more people with jobs and hope than ever before, there were many more in the opposite condition, partly because population had grown so rapidly. In fact, assessments of the quarter of century of effort have asserted that the development process has not significantly altered the situation of the poor. All the progress behind the success stories has, at most, slowed the rate at which conditions were getting worse.

Rich countries are praised for their aid and blamed for its inadequacy. Governments in poor countries are praised for their commitments to help their people and damned for their inefficiency, corruption and lack of interest in actual efforts.

Refugees from East Pakistan streaming into India with all their belongings

Population growth is viewed as the central problem, and many experts say that they simply do not know what to do to curb it short of radical transformation of societies to strictly and forcefully limited options of family size.

Gunnar Myrdal, the Swedish sociologist, concluded seven years ago, after a decade of study, that nothing short of "radical policy measures" would work. Even they would not check population growth within 20 or even 30 years after they were adopted, he felt.

In Asia, where more than half the world's people live, population-control programs have only begun. They have been least successful where they are most needed.

There might be one major exception, China, which went through the radical transformation Myrdal talked about. The Population Reference Bureau, Inc., of Washington, D.C., estimates her population at 786.1 million and her growth rate at 1.7 per cent a year — second lowest in Asia after Japan, with 1.2 per cent.

If the figures are correct, China's annual population increase would still be 13.4 million, roughly that of India, leaving the Chinese with both a major achievement and a major problem.

Motivation and attitude are paramount, because technological breakthroughs such as birth-control pills and intrauterine devices, or abortion and simplified sterilization operations, are useless unless people resort to them. Furthermore, vast improvements in governmental efficiency would be required to put them to successful use.

Singapore's relatively successful motivation includes rapidly gained affluence, mass education and economic discrimination against parents with more than two children. The 2.2 million people live on a small island, tightly controlled by an uncontested government that is the envy of shaky regimes throughout Asia. The country's size and ideology are directly opposed to China's, but the government's command over the population, 80 per cent is of Chinese origin, is comparable.

Many governments in Asia simply cannot take the pervasive steps needed to curb population growth and hope to remain in power.

As for the population pressures, the moral plank on which men and governments base their development efforts is that everything that can be done to preserve lives must be done. Malaria control, for example, cannot be neglected so that a natural population balance will be restored. Yet the plank is responsible for greatly increasing problems. Mainly because of malaria control, life expectancy in India rose from 32 in 1951 to 57 years today.

In India, where family planning has been a government concern since 1949 — longer than in the rest of Asia — there is another rule: Birth control must be voluntary.

The rule is followed throughout Asia, but a recent trend has seen its slow erosion through economic and social discrimination against large famlies.

The chief tools remain persuasion and education. Men get 20 rupees — $2.65 — for being sterilized, and sometimes triple or five times that amount at carnival-like vasectomy rallies.

'One Would Hope That Eayrs Will Flee TV'

By DOUGLAS FISHER

OTTAWA — The enjoyment and stimulation provided by the new books of essays and columns by James Eayrs leads into questions about the author and his emergence as a public man:

What brought him out of scholarship and teaching at the University of Toronto into popular journalism?

His published record of academic works suggest that it wasn't because he found research and scholarly authorship hard. Perhaps the teaching and lecturing phases of university work get him down. Perhaps, as he hints in this book, Greenpeace And Her Enemies, he found himself too self-centred to give students the time and consideration which his sense of justice told him they deserved.

I remember that in the late 1950s Professor Eayrs had established himself in academia as the most brilliant of all the post-war surge into the university teaching of history and politics.

In 1957, in Ottawa, possibly across the nation, the Department of External Affairs had more prestige than any other. The late Sidney Smith, ex-President of the University of Toronto, told me, when he was External Affairs Minister in 1958, that Eayrs "is so brilliant we should find a place for him in External."

Shortly, Eayrs initiated what became an estrangement from the urbane men in External Affairs through public lectures which he gave at Carleton University. In these talks he proclaimed how essential it was to the integrity, judgment and the influence of the professor that he remain at arm's length from government.

No consultant fees, no contract work, no footsy with either the senior public officials or the politicians. In making his case, Eayrs had some scathing opinions about the pretentiousness and phoniness of diplomacy and its morality.

JAMES EAYRS

At first there was puzzlement in both the academic and the official world on why Eayrs should have chosen to isolate himself from the normal, easy come-and-go relationships that an expert of a field has with its practitioners. In jig-time he was having trouble in getting access to files and persons in Ottawa for his studies. I was soon hearing from the mandarins that he was "arrogant" and "untrustworthy" and "ruthless."

Just into the 1960s Professor Eayrs began to write a column on public affairs in the old Family Herald and Weekly Star, a most unusual forum, given its readership and style.

He reveals in the forward to Greenpeace that his journalistic models are Bernard Levin, a vinegary iconoclast of London fame, and I. F. Stone, the independent investigative reporter who built a big liberal readership with his newsletters from Washington.

Eayrs' journalism is much more like Levin's than Stone's especially in invective. Eayrs' trademark is the apt, the distinctive, the devastating, the little-known or unknown quotation, plucked from a diversity of authors, literatures and periods.

Eayrs has a few similarities to the Globe's Richard Needham in love of the pungent phrase in pessimism, about humor, frailty and cupidity in self-confidence.

Whenever I would ask editors or publishers why they didn't jump to get the works of this sharp, unusual talent they'd say that Eayrs was too high-faluting with too big a vocabulary.

A less popular explanation was that Eayrs was too mean to men in public life, particularly in ridiculing respected foreign statesmen such as American presidents.

Once the Toronto Star began to publish Eayrs regularly, about four years ago, he began to get both the professional attention his writing merits and the bitter reactions his criticisms ensure. The Toronto exposure and syndication guaranteed Eayrs both audience and respect as a commentator on public affairs.

In his work as journalist Eayrs had some advantages simply through mystery. He was not a man to run the corridors of power or to be seen following and observing the newsmakers. He had a solid though not well-known base as a publishing scholar at the U of T and an emerging stature as the only writer in our popular journalism with the panache, learning and content to rank with the best of the journalists in the Western world.

Last fall, Eayrs blew the cover to his mystery and, perhaps, too much of the hard-won recognition and status. He was hired by CBC Weekend to be a joint host of this network flagship with Charlotte Gobeil, the brittle blonde darling from Ottawa-Hull.

His low ratings as a teacher and guide to students might have warned Mr. Eayrs that television, especially interviewing and reading script-filler, would not be his game.

Genius is differentiated. Pat Watson probably is the best TV interviewer with the most superb timing one has seen on Canadian TV. But Watson writes a lousy book and his essays in print journalism have been limp. Watson has empathy, a capacity to be either comforter or foil. Mr. Eayrs on Weekend seems miscast, a dour misanthrope.

One would hope that Eayrs will flee television. Indeed, you wonder what he wanted from it. Influence? Fame? Having got into TV, why didn't he sense quickly both his ineptness and the demeaning restraints which the producers put on him. If the summit of TV public affairs is to interview the prime minister, why continue as co-host when you are not included in that big deal?

Now for the Good News

HARPER'S
An Editorial

Vietnam is a synonym for misperception — not the least of which may be our supposition that the war was an American catastrophe.

Few people would now doubt that the cost of Richard ("our finest hour") Nixon's "peace with honor" was ruinous. The U.S. squandered thousands of lives, billions of dollars, and invaluable moral authority for a no-win outcome that devastated much of Indochina. Still, history is seldom kind to contemporary assumptions. There is a paradox, for example, that the losers of a war (Germany) often emerge stronger than the winners (Britain). It might even be argued, in Newtonian fashion, that for every national tragedy, there is an equal and opposite triumph.

To entertain the notion that evil contains the seeds of good is, of course, to risk the fatuousness of Dr. Pangloss. But just as Vietnam brought on a dark night of the American soul, so also it destroyed archaic policies, gave the nation a new sense of realism about the world and, at least potentially, refreshed the American spirit. Items:

● Americans will no longer blindly support the cavalier use of draftees to fight distant wars based solely on "anti-Communism." This should have a salutary effect on U.S. policy-makers, who long paid more heed to Cold War abstractions than to the nation's specific interests.

● The failure of the immense U.S. military establishment to achieve "victory" in a foreign civil war might instil in our generals a new respect for the limits of superpower, for the quicksand of interventionism, and for the military necessity of adjusting needs to means.

JOE McCARTHY
. . . no chance now

● American's belated discovery that good men are capable of evil (as at My Lai) might erode our national belief that we are God's Chosen People; and perhaps it will magnify our awareness that war corrupts all men, the best and the worst, and is therefore to be avoided in nearly all cases, except genuine national defense.

● While accelerating the trend toward a Presidency immune to checks and balances, Vietnam has legitimized a counterattack by Congress in rare defense of its gutted powers as a coequal branch of the U.S. government. Although the counterattack may fail for lack of political courage, it already has emboldened Congress to acknowledge its own deficiencies and hypocrises — and even to consider doing something about them.

● Although the war reinforced a much lamented cynicism toward American institutions, the eventual result may be more constructive than destructive. More and more of us now insist that most institutions (marriage, schools, Congress, even corporations) serve individuals, not the other way around. You can't run the Marine Corps that way, but a rebirth of healthy individualism won't hurt the rest of us. It makes us less likely to sacrifice our real interests to abstract obligations. It moves us to seek authentic relationships based on mutual respect: a tie that frees rather than binds. In one way or another, this is the common goal of our recent social rebels — disenchanted women, youths, blacks, white ethnics, etc. They all want to do their own thing, and if they can stop dictating to the rest of us, we just might achieve a truly free society.

There remains the spectre of a domestic backlash against "defeat" in Vietnam, or against the surrogate baddies of the counterculture. How Senator Joseph McCarthy would have exploited all this! And yet to imagine a McCarthy rampant in the post-Vietnam era is to realize how far we've come. For one thing, the end of the endless withdrawal has left us in a mood of weary relief, not angry recrimination. For another, the withdrawal has been controlled by the very politicians (Mr. Nixon for example) who might have led a stab-in-the-back movement had they been out of office rather than in. A neo-McCarthy? Perhaps. But the odds are that today most Americans would yawn at the Senator, and quite a few would laugh. We may be growing up.

U.S. Skydiver In Death Fall

ELSINORE, Calif. (UPI) — A skydiver, his wrists apparently broken by a 150-mile-per-hour collision with another parachutist breaking away from a tricky 10-man star formation, struggled helplessly with his ripcord as he fell 3,500 feet to his death Sunday.

Toby Radecke, 29, of Los Angeles, smashed to earth in a backyard. John V. Hover, 21, of Loma Linda, Calif., a dental student, was knocked out by the impact with Radecke, seconds after Hover's parachute deployed. He was unconscious when he landed, and was reported in fair condition at Loma Linda Medical Centre.

With eight other parachutists, they had bailed out of a twin-engine Beechcraft at 12,500 feet to form a star, a demanding and dangerous maneuver requiring control and nerve. Skydivers "fly" their bodies, by muscular control, until all jumpers are on the same level, then come together in a circle and join hands as they plummet earthward.

The more participants, the riskier the jump because of the greater complexity in forming the star and the increased hazard of collisions.

STUDENT JOBS

The defence department plans to employ more armed forces reserves and students in the Greater Victoria area this summer.

Four separate programs are planned, involving students and reserve forces. Students of both sexes between 17 and 24 can apply.

Full details have not yet been released from Ottawa but indications are that there will be more money allocated for students this summer.

About 700 students were employed last year by the armed forces for six weeks. Their average weekly pay was $61.50. Some 150 of them were from Greater Victoria.

This year's four programs will be:

—General maintenance work on national defence property.

—Cadet summer camps.

—Militia training.

—A community affairs program which will include beach-cleaning and cleanups of other areas.

New Blood In Cancer Battle

NOGALES, Ariz. (Reuter) — Two Swedish scientists reported evidence today that the blood of Negroes may carry a powerful weapon against a dangerous type of skin cancer, malignant melanoma.

Dr. Karl-Erik Hellstrom and his wife, Dr. Ingegerd Hellstrom, both on the faculty of the school of medicine at the University of Washington State, told science writers at a special seminar sponsored by the American Cancer Society that they found "completely by accident" that plasma taken from Negroes apparently attacks melanoma tumors.

The Hellstroms have reported in recent years that substances they call blocking antibodies apparently stop a person's cancer-killing lymphocytes from attacking malignant cells, thus allowing the tumors to kill the patient.

The Hellstroms reported they have been working to determine how these blocking antibodies can be unblocked, and found that "serum from blacks seems to have this unblocking ability." It has no effect against other types of tumors.

IN-LAW SOLUTION

NEW DELHI (UPI) — Police said today that survey of suicides in Delhi last year showed that 25 men took their lives because of differences with their mothers-in-law.

Police Pay Hike Fair: Curtis

A 15 per cent higher police budget going to Saanich council tonight is reasonable in view of conditions, Mayor Hugh Curtis believes.

The budget drawn up by the board of police commissioners for 1973 is for $1.45 million, compared with an actual expenditure of $1.26 million in 1972 and $1.07 million in 1971.

Of the $190,000 increase proposed this year, $159,178 is for anticipated police and civilian staff salaries.

Curtis, chairman of the commission said council has no authority to alter salaries, but could refer other matters back for reconsideration.

Increased police costs of the past two years reflect "growth of the department and wage increases won by police departments in this country over the last few years," Curtis said.

He agreed the dollar increase was "hefty" but "no one should express surprise about it" in view of the trend. He called it a fair budget.

$M Apartment Permit

A million-dollar apartment building represented nearly one-third of the total March construction permit value in Saanich.

But the $3.63 million total still fell $1.68 million short of March, 1972, when the value of all new construction in the municipality was $5.3 million.

A decline in non-dwelling construction appeared to be the main reason for the shortfall, as the value of housing — including apartments — rose last month from $1.25 million to $1.33 million for fewer permits, or 44 compared with 50 a year ago.

Total permits issued in March were 101, down six from the 107 granted in the same month of 1972.

The principal structure launched last month was an 83-unit apartment valued at $1.16 million on a site at 4061 Larchwood in the university district.

Saanich construction values this year are running $2.79 million behind 1972 — $6.06 million against $8.85 million. Permits issued number 254 compared with 309.

Value of dwellings is down from $3.08 million to $2.9 million for 108 permits, a drop of 19 from the first quarter a year ago.

Taylor Rites Set

Funeral services will be held Wednesday at 3:30 p.m. in McCall's Floral Chapel for former Daily Colonist columnist and associate editor Tom Taylor, who died Saturday following a lengthy illness.

Taylor, 76, joined the editorial staff of the Colonist in 1939 as church editor, and later became a reporter, city editor, news editor, assistant editor and associate editor before retiring in 1967.

A native of Glasgow, Scotland, he came to Canada in 1921 and settled in Regina. He worked two years as a draftsman for the city waterworks department, then joined the staff of the provincial auditor's department, and was chief clerk from 1928 to 1938.

He edited the Saskatchewan civil service staff magazine for eight years.

Taylor was a member of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, St. Andrew's and Caledonian Society and had just been made honorary provost of the Saltire Society of Victoria.

He is survived by his wife Beth, whom he married in Regina in 1925.

Hunter Class Slated

Persons over 12 may register for the conservation and outdoor recreation course which is offered in conjunction with the Provincial Wildlife Branch at the Royal Oak Junior Secondary School Tuesdays at 7 p.m.

The compulsory portion of the course, which satisfies all prerequisites for hunting and firearm licenses, includes hunting ethics, regulations, gun handling, hunter safety, animal identification, survival and first aid.

Chief instructor is Harold Aldridge, a member of the Saanich Rod and Gun Club.

Fee for the seven session course is $3 for those under 18 and $6 for others.

I.Q. of 145 And A Poor Memory?

A noted publisher in Chicago reports there is a simple technique for acquiring a powerful memory which can pay you real dividends in both business and social advancement and works like magic to give you added poise, necessary self-confidence and greater popularity.

According to this publisher, many people do not realize how much they could influence others simply by remembering accurately everything they see, hear, or read. Whether in business, at social functions or even in casual conversations with new acquaintances, there are ways in which you can dominate each situation by your ability to remember.

To acquaint the readers of this paper with the easy-to-follow rules for developing skill in remembering anything you choose to remember, the publishers have printed full details of their self-training method in a new booklet, "Adventures in Memory," which will be mailed free to anyone who requests it. No obligation. Send your name, address, and zip code to: Memory Studies, 555 E. Lange St., Dept 630-45, Mundelein, Ill. 60060. A postcard will do.

Tory MPs Question Value Of Anti-Dumping Tribunal

That question, in a variety of forms, was put to tribunal members during a recent session of the Commons finance committee.

Some MPs asked if the tribunal, created in 1969 to protect Canadian manufacturers from unfair foreign competion, is doing as much as it could.

Alfred D. Hales (PC — Wellington) said the tribunal is of little use to small businesses because of the high cost of participating in hearings.

He said the number of dumping cases heard by the tribunal in four years — 22 — seems small in relation to the troubles Canadian manufacturers have with imports.

MERGE WITH BOARD

Sinclair Stevens (PC — Toronto York-Simcoe) said footwear makers are in serious trouble because of foreign imports but the tribunal has taken too long preparing a report on the situation.

Marcel Lambert (PC — Edmonton West) suggested that the tribunal merge with the tariff board.

Two years ago, the tribunal faced similar criticisms and as a result its role was expanded to allow it to undertake inquiries at the request of the government into the effect of non-dumped imports.

Dumping is the sale of goods in one country at prices lower than fair market value, which is normally taken to be the price at which the goods are sold in the country of origin.

When the revenue department, acting on complaints from Canadian manufacturers, determines dumping has taken place, it imposes provisional anti-dumping duties on the dumped goods.

The tribunal then has 90 days to hold hearings and decide whether the dumping has materially injured Canadian industry. If there has been such injury, the provisional duties are retained. If not, they are refunded.

Tribunal chairman J. P. C. Gauthier told the committee the role of the tribunal is passive — it only holds hearings if a case is referred to it by the revenue department.

FIRMS RELUCTANT

Gauthier said Canadian industry has appeared reluctant to make use of the tribunal by initiating cases through complaints to the revenue department.

But he denied that the cost of hearings prevents small businesses from using the tribunal.

The tribunal protects industrial sectors, not individual companies, he said.

Where a small company accounted for most Canadian production of certain goods threatened by dumping the tribunal would hold hearings where that company was located, thus eliminating the expense of coming to Ottawa.

Also, it was not necessary for companies to hire legal counsel to represent them at hearings.

Hales said he knows some companies that paid up to $300,000 in expenses for a hearing.

Gauthier said hearings have varied from a few days to a few weeks.

COULD USE RESOURCES

On the suggestion for a merger with the tariff board, Gauthier said that is a policy matter for the government. He would not mind having access to the resources and manpower of the board.

The anti-dumping tribunal has a staff of nine, including stenographers, and a budget of $275,000 for the 1973-74 fiscal year. There are three members of the tribunal.

The seven-member tariff board is supported by 33 members and has a total budget of $771,000.

The government has made only one request for an inquiry since the 1971 amendment permitting requests for inquiries into non-dumped imports, he said.

That request, made in November, 1971, was for a report on footwear imports. Gauthier said the report is being printed and translated and should be ready at the end of April, 16 months after the request.

GIVES REASON

Gauthier said the reasons for the delay were involvement in legal cases and lack of staff lawyers, anti-dumping hearings, resignation of former chairman W. W. Buchanan and the complexity of the footwear industry.

Questionnaires were sent to the 187 Canadian footwear manufacturers, drawing 76 complete answers. Among other difficult work was analyzing the financial statements of the 76 firms for the last five years.

He said the tribunal has found material injury in 11 of the 22 cases referred to it and there is no strong pattern in the areas of origin of dumped goods.

Most of the companies complaining about injury from dumped goods, he said, were foreign-owned.

'Ologists' Blasted By Vancouver Judge

HARRISON HOT SPRINGS (CP) — Provincial court judge Les Bewley Saturday lashed out at "ologists" — the sociologists, psychologists and anthropologists who "have persuaded members of government that the law is misguided, the offender is most important and the victim is to be disregarded as a mere statistic."

The Vancouver judge was addressing the annual exchange conference of British Columbian and King County lawyers.

"Ologists have no hesitation in holding themselves out as experts in the field of crime and punishment and the law itself," he said, adding that many of the academics "have never met a real criminal, in action, as police and judges do daily."

Bewley said he'd read many reports by "ologists" dealing with "the traumas of criminals."

"I have not chanced upon one dealing with the traumatic effect of crime upon the lives of the victims."

Judge Bewley said judges and police, who have a certain expertise obtained firsthand, are by tradition excluded from public debate on crime issues. But academics, he said, have the time, the research grants, and access to news media and the government to make their views known.

VANCOUVER (CP) — Rehabilitation Minister Norm Levi has promised to find work for the 22 government employees without jobs resulting from the closure of Willingdon School for Girls in Burnaby. Levi made the announcement Saturday after meeting with the workers and British Columbia Government Employees Union secretary John Fryer.

Fight in Temple

VANCOUVER (CP) — Several hundred persons jostled and argued in a Sikh temple here Sunday after a church service and commemorative ceremony for late East Indian patriot Mew Singh erupted into a dispute.

Witnesses said the early morning service ended when two persons inside the temple began arguing loudly and throwing punches.

About 10 police officers went to the temple but left when Sikh spokesmen said the dispute was under control.

Stardust Posts Bond

VANCOUVER (CP) — The federal government has launched a civil action for general damages against the freighter Irish Stardust, its skipper, a Canadian pilot and Irish Shipping Ltd. of Dublin as a result of an oil spill Jan. 25 off Alert Bay.

Gunnar Eggertson, a federal justice department lawyer, said Sunday the federal government will accept a $395,000 bond posted by the ship's owners, Irish Shipping Ltd., until the action can be heard. He said the bond will enable the ship to leave Esquimalt where it has been under repair.

Eggertson said the $395,000 bond represents the estimated cost of cleaning up the spill estimated at 342 tons.

CIDA PURCHASES VITAL

MONTREAL (CP) — Certain Canadian companies could not stay in business without purchases made by the Canadian International Development Agency for use in developing nations, agency president Paul Gerin-Lajoie said.

"Particular Canadian business enterprises would find it difficult if not impossible to remain economically viable without the purchases CIDA makes from them," he told the Montreal Board of Trade.

Mr. Gerin-Lajoie, head of the organization that dispensed 7,564 contracts to Canadian firms in the last three years, made the remarks at the launching of a cross-country tour by his officials.

Purpose of the tour, which will include meetings with 135 companies, is to let businessmen know of the opportunities for international trade and investment. The campaign is led by CIDA's industry director Dominick Sarsfield and lasts until June 30.

More than $250 million in aid funds provided by Canada through bilateral programs between 1969 and 1972 were used by developing countries to purchase Canadian food products and "scores of millions more" were spent on Canadian minerals, manufactured goods, machinery and trained personnel, Mr. Gerin-Lajoie told the meeting.

These goods and services were undoubtedly crucial to the development of countries receiving Canadian aid. But economic growth in developing nations contributes to the expansion of world trade as a whole and provides a growing market for Canadian products in the process.

Mr. Gerin-Lajoie said CIDA, the government agency responsible for dispensing foreign aid, is more than a subsidy program for otherwise unviable Canadian industries.

"Canada happens to excel in many areas. . . . There is no reason why we should not attempt to develop and promote those areas of excellence and to employ them in promoting international development."

Multilateral funding, enabling Canadian suppliers, manufacturers contractors and consulting services to bid for contracts in developing countries, has been set at $130 million for 1973-74, he said.

CIDA recently established lines of credit which make loans available to developing countries and specify that Canadian firms be given the contracts.

CIDA's business and industry division was established in 1969. Since then, a number of studies have been financed by the agency to encourage Canadian investment in less developed countries.

Studies have been conducted in such sectors as mining, construction, textiles, lumber and wood products, paper and paper products, chemicals, transportation, metal, plastics and electrical machinery.

NDP Demands New Labor Laws

VANCOUVER (CP) — The New Democratic Party provincial council voted Sunday to ask Labor Minister Bill King to begin to repeal unfair labor laws at the current session of the British Columbia legislature.

King earlier told the council that no further changes in labor laws were anticipated during the current session.

The provincial council is the policy-making body of the NDP between annual conventions and includes the provincial executive, MLAs and MPs and elected delegates from riding associations.

King told the weekend meeting that the government must move slowly on changing labor laws because the NDP will not remain in power forever and a system must be established to guarantee labor peace after it loses power.

The council voted 50-4 to accept King's statement "with regret."

King said later in the meeting that he has received support from many unions, and that the push for faster changes come mainly from Vancouver.

Rural locals, he said are satisfied with the way things now are.

He did not name the unions giving support.

King said at another meeting new labor legislation would be introduced at the fall legislative session, probably in October.

King was asked at the 22nd annual labor Institute on Human Rights why the New Democratic Party does not immediately cancel "the Socred anti-labor legislation."

"I wish it was that simple," he replied. "I don't think you can do away with those laws and just leave a vacuum. There is no question that the legislation passed under the Social Credit government must go but we are obligated to listen to diverse viewpoints before making changes."

The meeting in earlier business passed a motion to send a letter to Education Minister Eileen Dailly requesting that a course on trade union history be introduced, particularly in the lower grades, and that Canadian history be taught from Canadian-printed textbooks.

King noted in his speech that the education minister is already studying the possibility of such a course.

DECISION NOT OURS

OTTAWA (CP) — Although the Canadian government is not satisfied with the role Canada is playing as peacekeeper and truce supervisor in Vietnam, it will stay for an additional 90 days because "other countries don't think it is futile," says Mitchell Sharp.

"If we had to make a judgment on our own as to how effective the International Commission of Control and Supervision is and how effective the ceasefire is, we would have withdrawn," he said during an interview on the program Question Period.

"But other countries said the presence of Canada is important and, while I'm skeptical about this, nevertheless as a responsible member of the international community we said: All right . . . we'll stay for another limited period."

Those who asked Canada to stay were the Americans, the British, the Japanese and the members of the NATO (North Atlantic Treaty Organization), he said.

The Canadians will withdraw if they see evidence that any of the parties to the peace agreement had broken it, Sharp said.

Douglas Fisher, columnist for the Victoria Times, asked that if the U.S. government was hiring civilian technical advisers and putting them into South Vietnam as helicopter pilots, aircraft mechanics or, in effect, military advisers, if the Canadian peace team would withdraw.

"It is quite clear that there are some Americans who are remaining there to do this kind of work because the South Vietnamese may not be able to provide this kind of service themselves," Sharp replied.

"But they are not there as military people, in my understanding."

Fisher then asked if the Canadians found that these advisors were, in effect, "pacification teams," if that would change the view.

"If we saw evidence that any of the parties to the peace agreement had broken it, of course we would be out immediately," the minister replied.

Sharp said that while he was not optimistic about the discussions about reconciliation and concord, Canada cannot be the sole judge.

Report Hits Shipbuilding Policy Lack

LAUZON, Que. (CP) — A Quebec construction report released Sunday said instability of the Canadian shipbuilding industry is due to the federal government's lack of a policy on the subject and shipbuilders' inability to "rationalize" their methods of production.

Norbert Rodrigue, interim president of the Confederation of National Trade Unions (CNTU) told a meeting of shipbuilding workers a CNTU-prepared economic study showed lack of competition among Canadian shipbuilders was part of the problem.

Canadian shipbuilders should imitate their foreign competitors who use "series production", he said.

In Canada, constructors build "one ship at a time and then start all over again."

"The unit cost of one of these ships is invariably out of proportion."

He lashed out at the federal government which he said has no policy on shipbuilding or has adopted short-term measures such as individual subsidies for construction of some ships.

The study concluded it was essential that a Canadian merchant marine be created that would form a market for vessels produced by Canadian shipbuilders, Mr. Rodrigue said.

VOLCANO BLAMED FOR EARTHQUAKE

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (UPI) — Residents of Managua blamed a nearby volcano today for five strong earthquakes that shook the ruins left by a destructive earlier quake in which 10,000 persons died.

The tremors Saturday shook down walls, caused some panic and left the city without electricity for several hours.

But there were no reports of injuries.

"The building danced like it was on rollers," said an employee of the downtown Communications Palace. The palace was one of a few downtown buildings left standing after an earthquake Dec. 23 killed 10,000 persons.

Retired Col. Carlos Silva said he was convinced the earthquakes were caused by the Santiago volcano, 20 miles east of Managua. "I was near the volcano," Silva said. "There was a loud rumbling and then the earthquake came. It was awful."

Travellers along a nearby highway stopped to watch as the volcano spewed smoke Saturday.

Authorities said five different walls, all previously damaged by the December quake, fell Saturday. There was a general panic in several city districts.

Diplomat Dies

SAN SALVADOR (AP) — Hector David Castro, 78, an El Salvador diplomat, died Sunday. Castro was ambassador to the United States from 1934 to 1961.

Canada 'Supports' Mexico

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada supports and sympathizes with the position of Mexican President Luis Echeverria and his government on a number of issues, External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp told members of the Mexican press Sunday.

"But these ideas have a better chance of success if we consider the norms of international behavior rather than arguing about the rights and duties of states."

Speaking through a translator, Mr. Sharp said "Canadians are a pragmatic people. . . . They believe in seeking solutions that will work, not theoretical answers."

During his five-day visit to Canada the Mexican president challenged Canada to strengthen its ties with Mexico and other Latin American countries in a concerted effort to ward off increased economic domination of their responsive economies by the United States.

Mr. Sharp said discussions with Mr. Echeverria and his ministers had revealed that the two countries were of like minds on several issues, including their relationship to major trading blocs, nuclear disarmament, the need to control foreign investment and to protect the environment.

He reiterated Canada's reluctance to join the Organization of American States, a move Mr. Echeverria has said he favors strongly. Canada now holds only observer status in the OAS and is a member of a number of its subsidiary organizations.

Canada would like to start work on a mutual taxation agreement with Mexico, Mr. Sharp said.

Such an agreement would avoid double taxation for anyone working in both countries.

DIPLOMATIC WRANGLING ended temporarily, Henry Kissinger can now return to the other side of his image . . . that of the movie-star-escorting swinger. His date at a black tie and tux party in Hollywood Saturday night was Norwegian actress Liv Ullman. The big bash was in honor of veteran movie director John Ford. Also attending the party were President and Mrs. Nixon. Purpose of the celebration was the presentation to Ford by the president of the Medal of Freedom, highest award that can be presented to a civilian in the U.S. It was awarded to Ford for his more than 40 years in the film industry during which time he has been involved with some of the best-loved U.S. films.

By Bathtub From U.S. to Russia

OAKLAND, Calif. — Leonard Moore says he'll start rowing a bathtub from the United States to Russia July 4 to deliver a million letters as an ambassador of goodwill.

"There is a need for friendship around the world," said Moore, 48. "If we just stand there and say it, most people wouldn't pay any attention. But if we dramatize it, people will see the need."

This time he plans to row the 4½-foot-long tub 52 miles across the Bering Sea from Western Alaska to the U.S.S.R.

JEDBURG, England (UPI) — The village council has decided to withdraw its new tourist guide. A photograph on the front page shows the entrance to the Jedburg cemetery with a caption that reads: "Where friendship, hospitality and a warm welcome await you."

CHEYENNE, Wyo. — Sgt. Jack Frost retired from active duty at Warren Air Force Base here and was replaced by Sgt. Kenneth Snowball.

PARIS—Folksinger Joan Baez said Sunday she was surprised at reaction to reports by returning U.S. PoWs that they were tortured in North Vietnam.

"I am a little surprised at the outrage over the PoWs since there are still 200,000 prisoners in South Vietnam who are not being treated well," she said. "But you have to remember that in a situation of war with all its hatred and agony there is going to be some revenge."

EDSON, Alta.—The early-morning announcer at radio station CJYR received a surprise when he reported for work Sunday—he was locked out.

As an April Fool gag, two other employees of the station —Waxie Williams and Charlie Brown—had changed the locks on the doors. They also moved remote equipment out of the building and were bradcasting from an undisclosed location.

Staff member Don Mody and listeners were invited to guess where the booth was set up.

There were no correct phone calls so Williams and Brown at noon disclosed their location—in a questioning booth at the local jail.

MANCHESTER, England — Harry Taylor, a retired arc welder who died in January at age 86, left an estate of $1.25 million and two astounded heirs. "It is a complete mystery how he did it," said Harry Jr. when his father's will was probated today. He said neither he nor his mother, to whom the estate goes, had any notion Taylor was rich.

STOCKHOLM—Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin arrived here today for a five-day official visit to Sweden.

Kosygin and Premier Olof Palme plan talks on world problems, including Indochina and the Middle East, and on bilateral issues, including trade and cultural exchanges.

TEL AVIV—Valery Panov, a Jewish ballet star who wants to emigrate to Israel, says the Russian government is threatening to put him and his wife out of their home in Leningrad, and "we have no way left but to kill ourselves," newspapers here reported today. The newspapers said Panov spoke by telephone from a friend's home with an official of the Bat Sheva dance company, which wants to star the Russian if he can get to Israel.

Doll With Towering Talent

By AUDREY JOHNSON
Times Staff

Doll-like Masuko Ushioda, looking in her long red flowered dress as though she had stepped from a Japanese screen, astonished and enchanted a Victoria Symphony audience on Sunday with her towering talent.

The violinist, whose performance was a highlight of last year's orchestra season, appears to have grown in artistic stature within the year.

In warmth and beauty of tone, clarity of thought and authority a burnishing has taken place. To such an extent that it is reasonable to forecast Ushioda assuming a place among the few truly great violinists of our time.

With Laszlo Gati conducting she performed two interestingly contrasted concertos — the Mozart No. 3 in G, and Prokofiev's Op. 19, in D.

The elegant grace and brilliance of the Mozart was savored fully by both soloist and conductor, the orchestra strings and winds providing a sparkling and shapely accompaniment.

Playing the Prokofiev for the first time in concert, Ushioda's presentationo was dazzling in its virtuosity and clarity.

She found her way to the nerve centres of the lyrical passages that occur at the opening and in the adagio movement. The beauty of her tone and temperament wrung from these sections a moving poetry.

However, the concerto as a whole is designed to challenge the violinist to an extreme degree. Prokofiev seems to have set himself to the task of throwing every possible technical problem in the way of the soloist.

But impossible leaps, incredible feats of bow and left hand agility, chords, cascading runs—nothing impeded by a whisker the soaring brilliance, power and authority, which Ushioda brought to this performance.

For the orchestra's final concert of the 1972-73 season, Gati selected a show piece in the Berlioz Symphonie Fantastique.

This lengthy and occasionally melodramatic work occupies the whole last half of the program and calls on all the resources of a considerably enlarged orchestra.

To some degree the first movement was dull in color and had a tendency to meander. But the second "valse" part, the country movement with its delightful woodwinds, the third movement's shining brass and the finale—an exciting, brilliant "witches' sabbath"—brought out, under Gati's baton, the best of an orchestra that has grown in competence notably in the past year.

Israel Immigration

TEL AVIV (Reuter) — Nathan Peled, Israeli minister of immigrant integration, said here Saturday that 1972 was a record year for immigration to Israel. He said 56,000 new settlers arrived, including 32,000 from the Soviet Union.

One More Time

By The Canadian Press

The World Hockey Association's first season ended Sunday for all but Alberta Oilers and Minnesota Fighting Saints.

The Oilers, who for a while thought they had clinched fourth place in the West Division, later discovered they must play a tie-breaking game with Minnesota to decide which advances to the playoffs.

The game will be played either Tuesday or Wednesday in Calgary or Vancouver. A league spokesman said it was expected that Alberta general manager Bill Hunter would announce the definite site and time for the game.

Alberta and Minnesota finished the regular season with identical records of 39 wins, 37 losses and three ties for 79 points.

The league had originally provided for a playoff game to break such ties but on March 21 decided instead to adopt a tiebreaking scheme similar to the National Hockey League.

By that system, the won-lost record is the first factor but both teams had identical records. And after Alberta beat Minnesota 5-3 last Friday, they ended up with four wins each in their season series. That left Alberta ahead on 21 victories over West Division teams during the season to Minnesota's 17.

But Minnesota had protested the tie-breaking rule since it was announced two weeks ago, and after a poll of league trustees during the weekend, it was decided to revert to the playoff game.

VICTORY DOUSING: Buffalo Sabres' Rick Martin is given champagne shampoo by teammate Gerry Meehan following club's 3-1 victory over St. Louis Blues Sunday that clinched final playoff berth in NHL's Eastern Division. Sabres are first expansion team in East to make playoffs.

Sabres Find Punch To Make Playoffs

By The Canadian Press

Buffalo Sabres, in only their third season against tough East Division competition, clinched their first playoff berth as the National Hockey League season wound up Sunday.

The Sabres took fourth place in the East with a 3-1 victory over St. Louis Blues while Detroit Red Wings finished two points back after a 3-3 tie with New York Rangers.

Sabres coach Joe Crozier made it sound easy, pointing to general manager Punch Imlach as the man deserving the credit.

"Imlach put it all together," said Crozier. "In three years, he chose the right people.

"When you have a general manager who gives you the material, it wasn't all that hard for me."

ST. LOUIS IN

Detroit had stayed in contention by defeating Chicago Black Hawks Saturday and put up a furious battle against the Rangers in New York but failed to overcome Ranger goalie Ed Giacomin and didn't get the help they needed from St. Louis which had clinched fourth in the West by beating Piftsburgh Penguins 7-2 Saturday.

"What do you want me to say?" asked Detroit coach Johnny Wilson. "We did what we could."

The Sabres now go against East Division champion Montreal Canadiens in the best-of-seven quarter-finals starting Wednesday in Montreal.

The other three series also start Wednesday with St. Louis at Chicago, Minnesota North Stars at Philadelphia against the Flyers and the Rangers at Boston against the Bruins.

With Montreal the only Canadian team among the eight quarter-finalists, the Canadian Broadcasting Company announced it will televise all Canadiens' games. Wednesday's game will begin at 5 p.m. PST, as will Thursday's second from Montreal.

Victoria fans also will be able to watch the fourth game of the Minnesota-Philadelphia series, to be carried by Channel 5 next Sunday afternoon.

BRUINS LOSE

Philadelphia clinched second place in the West and thus home-ice advantage over Minnesota by beating New York Islanders 10-2 Saturday.

In other games Sunday, Montreal defeated Boston 5-3, Toronto Maple Leafs tied Chicago Black Hawks 4-4, Pittsburgh edged Philadelphia 5-4 and Atlanta Flames tied the Islanders 4-4.

Saturday, Montreal whipped the Rangers 5-1, Los Angeles Kings defeated Vancouver Canucks 6-3 and Toronto upset the Bruins 7-3.

Crozier had predicted the Sabres could win fourth place if they could accumulate 90 points. He was just two points short of his prediction after second-period goals by Larry Mickey and Jim Lorentz broke a 1-1 tie to provide Buffalo's victory.

St. Louis had taken the early lead on a goal by Wayne Merrick and Gil Perreault's 28th goal of the season tied it for the Sabres.

At New York, the Rangers took a 2-0 first-period lead which they preserved through the second period. Goals by Henry Boucha and Mickey Redmond gave Detroit a 2-2 tie before Vic Hadfield scored for New York.

Tim Ecclestone scored for Detroit to tie it again, but Giacomin, facing 17 shots in the third period, held out for the deadlock.

Blades, Bombers Clear First Round

Times News Services

While the home-ice advantage is playing a role in the Calgary Centennials-Medicine Hat Tigers playoff series in the Western Canada Hockey League, road games haven't bothered Saskatoon Blades, Edmonton Oil Kings or Flin Flon Bombers.

The Centennials whipped Medicine Hat Tigers 4-2 in Calgary Sunday night, their second home victory in three nights, after Medicine Hat took the first two games in Medicine Hat.

Saskatoon thumped Brandon Wheat Kings 7-2 Saturday to win their best-of-seven affair 4-2, while Flin Flon battled from behind to edge Regina Pats 4-3 in Moose Jaw Sunday night to sweep their series in four straight.

In the other quarter-final playoff, Edmonton's Dary Rota scored in the last minute at New Westminster Sunday to clip the Bruins 5-4 and take a 3-1 lead in the series.

The Western Division semi-finals continue Tuesday with Edmonton and Medicine Hat enjoying the home-ice advantage.

A total of 19,375 fans watched the weekend's four games, including a standing-room-only audience of 7,310 in Calgary.

Lanny McDonald and defenceman Bob Gassoff staked Tigers to a 2-0 lead before the game was 10 minutes old, but it was Calgary's game thereafter.

Ernie Gare was the Calgary sparkplug. He scored a pair of power-play goals to tie the game 2-2, helped set up Mike Rogers for the go-ahead goal in the final minute of the second period, then scored the insurance counter early in the third.

Palmer Takes Dip As Tourney Soaked

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — Most of pro golf's leading lights aren't overly concerned about a one-day delay in getting to Augusta, Ga., for the start of the famed Masters Tournament on Thursday.

"I don't think it makes any difference at all," said Billy Casper. "You'll still be able to play a couple of practice rounds and that's all you need."

"I heard the course is closed at Augusta now anyhow, because of all the rain, so I can't see it makes any difference," Lou Graham said.

Graham and Casper shared the lead at 199, a whopping 14 under par, going into today's rain-delayed final round in the $210,000 Greater Greensboro Open golf tournament.

The Greensboro finish was pushed back one day by a series of rains that have deluged this area and turned the 7,021-yard, par-71 Sedgefield Country Club course into a quagmire.

Saturday's play was washed out by a 1½-inch rain. A double round of 36 holes was scheduled Sunday but the course was unplayable with much of it under water for the morning round and only the afternoon half was played.

That forced a Monday wind-up and delayed most of the players' travel plans for Augusta by a day.

"If you're ready for a tournament you're ready," Palmer said.

But he wasn't ready for the dunking he got in a rain-swollen creek Sunday.

"I never felt so silly in all my life," Palmer said.

On the ninth hole, he slipped off a metal railing all that was left from a washed-out foot bridge and tumbled into the stream. He grabbed the railing and, scraping his right wrist in the process, hung there for a moment with the lower half of his body in the water.

Chi Chi Rodriguez was alone in third after a 67 for 201. Doug Sanders, 69, and Rod Funseth, 68, followed at 202 with 60-year-old Sam Snead, Mike Hill and George Knudson of Toronto grouped at 203.

"I should be a couple of shots better," said Snead. "I threw away a couple of shots on the last three holes."

"I think Graham is the man to beat," added Snead. "He's playing very well right now. He'll be hard to handle."

"I hope you're right, Sam," said the 35-year-old Graham, who had just finished with a 67.

He didn't make a bogey in his third round, had to scramble on only one hole and just missed an eagle three when he failed on an eight-foot putt on the sixth hole.

Lee Trevino had a 69 for a 206, seven back. Lee Elder was five off the lead after a 68 for a 204.

Ben Kern of Toronto shot his best round—a 69—but had a three-round score of 211.

Betty's Close But Betsy Best

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Betsy Cullen withstood a spirited charge by Betty Burfeindt to win the $4,500 first prize in the $30,000 Alamo Ladies open golf tournament Sunday.

Miss Cullen shot a three-over-par 76 to go with earlier rounds of 69 and 73 for a 218 total.

Mrs. Elliott, formerly of Oakville, Ont., won $1,790.

It was the second tour win for Miss Cullen, who finished first in the 1972 Sears Classic at Port St. Lucie, Fla.

'Home-Town' Support Boosts Seattle Netter

VANCOUVER (CP) — For Tom Gorman it was almost like playing in his home town and Jan Kodes knew it as Gorman took the singles title Sunday in the $50,000 Rothmans international professional tennis tournament.

Gorman, who grew up and played much of his early tennis in Seattle, just 150 miles from here, had a large group of vocal supporters on hand as he defeated Kodes 3-6, 6-2, 7-5.

"I thought I was playing in Seattle," said Kodes obviously angry at a couple of questionable line calls.

"Tom played very well, but there were one or two bad calls on my serve," said the 27-year-old Czechoslovakian who missed his chance to become the first player in the B side of the pro tennis tour to win two tournaments this season.

The tour now has made seven stops, and seven different players have wins.

The top four players from the B group will get together with the top four from the A side in May for the singles championship. The four leading doubles teams from each group will play in a doubles championship, also in May, in Montreal.

Gorman missed his opportunity to add the doubles title here, as he and partner Erik Van Dillen blew some golden opportunities and lost 7-5, 3-6, 6-7 to Roger Taylor of England and Pierre Barthes of France.

Gorman, 27, crediting his return of Kodes's service for his victory, picked up $10,000 and 10 points for 18 tour points and seventh place in B group singles.

Kodes, who got seven points and $5,000 for second place, moved into fifth place in the B tour.

In the final, with the two players tied at one set apiece, Gorman had a couple of match points when leading 5-4 as Kodes served. But Kodes reeled off three points in a row to tie the final set 5-5.

Then Gorman dropped two more points on his first two serves, and it looked as if the tide might turn. But he got four points in a row to move ahead 6-5, allowed Kodes the first point in the deciding game, then cracked over four winners to wrap up the victory.

In the doubles, the European pair reeled off seven points in a row after dropping the first point to take the best-of-12 game 7-1.

Despite their loss, Van Dillen and Gorman moved into fourth spot in doubles rankings, while Taylor and Barthes climbed into sixth place.

Broncos, Bruins In Final

KAMLOOPS, B.C. (CP) — Penticton Broncos moved into the British Columbia Junior Hockey League final against Chilliwack Bruins by downing Kamloops Rockets 3-2 and taking their best of seven semi-final series 4-3 Saturday night.

Penticton goalie Glen Bueckert led Broncos to the win by stopping 36 drives, 19 of them in the third period.

72,000 See Pearson Prevail In Torrid Atlanta 500 Duel

ATLANTA (AP) — David Pearson survived a torrid duel with Cale Yarborough Sunday and gunned his Mercury to victory before 72,000 persons in the Atlanta 500-mile stock car race.

Pearson, a 38-year-old two-time Grand National champion, and Yarborough had alternated in leading the $111,225 spring event almost from the opening gun.

But Yarborough's Chevrolet ran into overheating problems while leading by a narrow margin with less than 50 miles to go, and Pearson moved ahead to an easy triumph, his second major one of the season.

Pearson completed the 328 laps around the 1.522-mile course in three hours, 34 minutes and 53 seconds. His speed for the race was 139.391 miles an hour.

Pearson's share of the prize money was $16,175.

ADENAU, Germany (AP) — Willibald Kauhsen of West Germany piloted his Porsche 916-10 turbo to victory in both heats to win the season's first inter-series motor racing competition Sunday on the Nuerburgring racetrack.

Leon Kinnunen of Finland, also in a Porsche 917-10, was second after finishing second in heats Saturday and Sunday.

Reinhold Joest of West Germany, in a Porsche 908-3, was third.

Can-Am victor George Folmer of Arcadia, Calif., was knocked out of Sunday's race when his Porsche 917-10 collided on the preliminary lap with the GRD racer driven by Helmut Bross of West Germany. Both drivers were unhurt.

About 90,000 spectators lined the four-mile circuit for Sunday's heat covering 100 miles.

ROUEN, France (AP) — British motorcycle champion John Cooper skidded off the Essarts race track during the international 750 cc trophy race Sunday and was taken to hospital with head injuries later described as "superficial."

Track and hospital officials at first had described Cooper's condition as serious. He was released from the hospital after first aid treatment. He was riding a Norton in the race.

RECORD FALLS, SO DOES SKATER

SASKATOON — David Shields of the Esquimalt Speed Skating Club Sunday smashed a Canadian record but his story was one of heartbreak rather than triumph.

Shields set his record of one minute, four seconds flat in the junior men's 600-metre event at the Canadian Indoor speed skating championships. The old mark of 1:04.2, set by Todd Neufield of Winnipeg, had stood since 1969.

The record-breaking run was in a heat, however, and Shields fell in the final and, although he also reached finals of the 1,000-, 800- and 400-metre events, he came away without a title.

Shields fell in the 800 final and, in the 1,000 final the lead skater fell, taking out the next three skaters with him. Shields was one of them.

He had a last chance in the 400 final but was disqualified when he kicked a corner post.

Four others from the Esquimalt club were among 197 skaters taking part in the two-day championships.

Guyle Cornett was second in the midget boys' 300-metre final and also reached the semi-finals of the 400 metres.

Mark Cammiade was fourth in the midget boys' 800-metre final and also reached the semi-finals in the 200, 400 and 800 metres.

Brenda Shields reached the semi-finals of the bantam girls' 400 metres and Stewart Kennedy made it to the semi-finals of both the 300- and 400-metre events in the midget boys.

Swedes Upset World Champions

Sweden, gunning for a shot at the world hockey championship, scored two late goals at Moscow today and upset defending champion Czechoslovakia 2-0.

The first goal came unexpectedly when Mats Ahlberg had the puck to the right of Czech goal. He whirled and fired at Jiri Holecek and the Czech goalie pushed it to Dan Soderstrom who slid it into the unguarded net.

Holecek's mistake cost Czechoslovakia its chance to repeat as champion. After the goal he lay face down on the ice for several moments.

Three minutes later the fired-up Swedes scored again when Lundstrom wheeled out from behind the net and faked Holecekk out of position.

The game was the first real test for both teams. Each had an easy victory over Poland.

Action wound up Saturday night at Graz, Austria, in group B of the world hockey scramble with East Germany whipping Austria 12-2 to win the title with seven straight victories.

The East Germans will be promoted to group A next year along with the Americans, who finished second with five wins and a tie after beating Switzerland 10-4.

Yugoslavia was third in the eight-nation group, followed by Romania, Austria, Japan, Switzerland and Italy.

Ali's Dream Fades With Broken Jaw

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The $10-million dream, which ended with an explosion for Joe Frazier, faded quietly for Muhammad Ali.

His voice quieted by a broken jaw and his manner subdued after 12 rounds with a younger, stronger foe, Ali stood in his corner Saturday and heard what he probably had guessed: he had lost, amazingly to Ken Norton by a split decision.

A few months ago, before Frazier walked into several of George Foreman's haymakers in Jamaica, a Frazier-Ali rematch loomed that would outdraw their "Fight of the Century" and give Ali the chance to erase the only blot on his record and retire as champion.

Instead, the previously anonymous Norton, 28, now is the logical challenger to Foreman, while the future of the 31-year-old Ali is in doubt.

The broken jaw "shouldn't hamper his career," Dr. William Lundeen, the supervising ring physician, said after a 1½-hour operation Saturday night.

But Norton's trainer, Eddie Futch, when asked about a rematch with Ali, said: "Sure, if the money is right. But right now we don't need him."

Ali's trainer, Angelo Dundee, said Sunday that the boxer would be in hospital "for two or three days" for the operation to wire his left jaw bone.

Dundee said he couldn't predict how long it would be.

Ali, who had won 10 straight since losing to Frazier, was a 5-1 favorite over Norton, whose 30 victims in 31 fights were even more obscure. But Norton helped even the odds by starting a rigorous training program Feb. 22 while Ali trained lightly until the final week.

Ali, who lost for the second time in 43 fights, earned $210,000 to Norton's $50,000.

Ali's jaw was broken early in the fight. Dundee said it happened in the first round, though Norton didn't appear to land a solid blow in the round. Futch thinks it was in the fourth round.

Havlicek's 54 Points Spark Celts

New York Knicks needed a little "magic" to beat Baltimore Bullets and Boston Celtics used a lot of muscle to handle Atlanta Hawks.

Those were the ingredients of their National Basketball Association playoff victories Sunday as the Knicks and Celtics headed on a course toward the Eastern Conference title.

Led by Earl (Magic) Monroe's 32 points, the Knicks beat the Bullets 123-103 to grab a 2-0 lead in their first-round best-of-seven Eastern Conference playoffs.

In another Eastern match, John Havlicek knocked out Atlanta with a 54-point performance to power a runaway 134-109 Celtic triumph for a 1-0 lead in that series.

In the NBA's Western Conference playoffs, The Golden State Warriors nipped Milwaukee Bucks 95-92 to tie their set at 1-1 and Los Angeles Lakers defeated Chicago Bulls 108-93 for a 2-0 lead.

Monroe had an extraordinary game considering that he didn't sleep much of the night before.

He combined with backcourt mate Walt Frazier, who scored 29 points to help the Knicks break open the game with a devastating second half. During the last eight minutes of the third period until halfway through the fourth quarter, they teamed for 30 of New York's 32 points.

The Boston show was all Havlicek, whose point explosion was a team record. The Celtic star had 30 points in the first half and ran off strings of baskets any time the Hawks threatened to make a game of it.

Havlicek sank 24 of 36 field goal attempts and all six of his free throws. He also had nine rebounds and six assists.

Jo Jo White added 34 points for the Celtics, who raced to a 16-0 lead at the start.

FRAZIER AGREES TO TAKE FIGHTS

SEATTLE (AP) — Former heavyweight champion Joe Frazier has been signed to replace Muhammad Ali in an exhibition match here April 28.

A representative of all-star promotions, Joe Williams, said there is a possibility Frazier will fight a 10-round bout, instead of several two-round exhibitions as was planned in the Ali contract.

Ali had to cancel after he broke his jaw Saturday while losing an upset decision to Ken Norton in San Diego.

Rebels Grey Honor Al Shaw

Al Shaw was a pretty happy guy Sunday night.

Shaw, a forward with speed and a deadly shot, scored a first-half goal and then assisted on every goal in playing-coach Brian Foley's second-half hat-trick.

And, as his Rebels Grey teammates streamed jubilantly from the field at the University of Victoria after carrying off the Vancouver Island Men's Field Hockey Association's Island Cup for the second year in a row, they presented Shaw with the game ball as the team's outstanding player.

Rebels Grey, who also won the league title, needed all three of Foley's goals—all scored in the last 15 minutes—to edge Tigers 4-3 in a thrilling playoff final before more than 100 fans.

Tigers, who finished a close second in the Island league, shocked Rebels' goalkeeper Jim Sherlock with two brilliant goals by Jaswant Samra and one by Harbinger Singh to lead 3-1 at half time.

It was a fitting climax to a great season for Shaw, who was league scoring champion with 27 goals in 18 games. Teammate Foley was second in the scoring with 20 goals.

In an earlier consolation playoff final, Dave Auld scored two goals to lead Castaways to a 2-1 victory over Rebels Red. Murray Butt got the Rebels' goal.

Pirates, 'Pipers In Final

Sandpipers I and Pirates advanced to the first division playoff final of the Vancouver Island Women's Field Hockey Association April 14 by posting sudden-death, semi-final shutouts Saturday.

Dianne Whittingham scored both goals as league-champion Sandpipers I blanked Oak Bay 2-0 and Pirates, with a goal by Jenny John, ousted Mariners 1-0.

Pirates and Mariners had finished in a tie for second place.

Esquimalt defeated Sailors 4-2 in the final second division league match Sunday. Sailors, who hold down fourth place and the final playoff berth, were spared Saturday when Castaways held Sandpipers II to a 1-1 draw. Sandpipers II were trailing Sailors by two points.

Timely Header Puts United in Hole

By MAX LOW
Times Staff

Winger John Connor used his head at just the right moment Saturday and it proved enough for Westminster Blues.

Connor moved into position when centre-half Peter Noland sent over a perfect cross from an indirect free kick just outside the penalty box and the winger nodded the ball past goalkeeper Ash Douglass.

That was all the Blues needed to edge Victoria West-United in a 1-0 thriller before 350 fans at Royal Athletic Park and increase their league lead over United in the Pacific Coast Soccer League to three points.

The goal, which came at the 22-minute mark of the first half, was the only one scored in two clashes between the teams this season. United and Blues battled to a scoreless draw when the clubs last met Feb. 11 at Queen's Park in New Westminster.

Victory put the Blues, who carried off the Dominion Cup for the Canadian amateur club championship during the summer, in a good position to take the Coast League title away from United, the defending champion.

The New Westminster club needs only to defeat Khalsa, one of the lesser lights of the Inter-City League, in its final game next Saturday to be assured of the league title. United needs to beat both North Shore United and University of British Columbia Thunderbirds to have a chance.

West-United, which last season won both the league and playoff titles, had two good chances to equalize in the second half.

The first came after about 10 minutes when Bob Bolitho's hard drive past several defenders was stopped on the line by goalkeeper Robin Davies.

The second United chance came late in the match when coach Ron Thompson, who had just come on as a substitute, sent striker George Pakos through with only one defender to beat but Pakos blasted the ball straight into Davies' arms.

Blues dominated the rest of the match and Davies, top goalkeeper in the league, had a relatively easy time in recording his ninth shutout.

West-United and North Shore meet at Royal Athletic Park Saturday and the Victoria club finished its schedule with a game against the Thunderbirds in Vancouver April 14.

In the weekend's only other Coast League match, Thunderbirds edged Inter-Italia 1-0 at Empire Stadium Sunday to pull into a third-place tie with Victoria Gorge Molsons. Winger Jim Quinn scored the goal early in the second half.

Earlier Sunday, Westminster Blues reached the second round of the Provincial Cup by crushing Langley Borsato 4-0.

In an Inter-City League match Sunday, league leaders Simon Fraser University downed Vancouver Sporting Club, 5-2.

Vikings Win Big One To Come Up With Title

University of Victoria Vikings captured the Vancouver Island Soccer League title Sunday by defeating Courtenay 7-1 in the final schedule match of the season.

The victory boosted Vikings into a point tie for first place with Cosmopolitan Royals but the UVic squad took the crown on the basis of goal averages.

Nanaimo bounced visiting Courtenay 6-1 Saturday in the only other weekend action.

Royals meet third-place Oak Bay at 12:30 p.m. and Vikings tangle with Nanaimo at 2:15 in sudden-death semi-final games next Sunday in Centennial Stadium.

Play also ended in the Victoria and District League's three divisions at the weekend and playoffs begin next weekend between first and fourth as well as second and third-place squads.

Duncan Village Green II upset London Boxing Club I 2-1 in a Jackson Cup semi-final match Saturday at Heywood Avenue Park.

Bill Bleeks and Archie Harris scored for Village Green, which now faces Victoria West I in the Cup final April 11. Rick Lamoureaux replied for Boxers.

APRIL FOOL'S joke on former International Olympic Committee president Avery Brundage came Sunday in form of West German newspaper report that he plans to wed a German princess, Mariann Reuss, who at 37 is 48 years younger than Brundage. Princess Mariann's mother, Princess Stefanie Reuss, said: "If you think this story is an April Fool's joke, you have thought quite right. It is."

UVic won the 1,000-metre coxed fours race in a time of four minutes, 35 seconds while Pacific Lutheran finished in 5:02.

The visitors, however, took the coxed eights event over the same distance in 3:57 while UVic clocked in at 4:25.

SAANICH SWEEPS TO CAGE CROWN

TRAIL — Saanich defeated Prince George 53-34 in the final game Saturday to win the B.C. senior "B" women's basketball championship.

The Island squad, only team to go through the two-day, double-knockout tourney undefeated, edged Prince George, the defending champion, 46-40 earlier Saturday but Prince George downed Salmon Arm 43-41 to force a second meeting with Saanich.

Mary Coutts of Saanich was named the tournament's most valuable player while Barb Tribe and Lorraine Tutte were runners-up in the all-star voting.

North Delta Takes Title

North Delta United captured the provincial bantam boys' basketball crown Sunday by defeating Elizabeth Fisher 66-53 in the final of a double-loss elimination tournament at Mount View High School.

Elizabeth Fisher, whose only previous loss was a 49-43 decision to North Delta, picked up the Vancouver Island title.

Mike Kenis, who was later picked as the most-outstanding-player and an all-star, led the final victory with 20 points while Dave English led Elizabeth Fisher with 16 points.

Wayne Corness was the other United player chosen to the all-star squad along with Rick Reece and Ted Cuckovich of Elizabeth Fisher and Ross McCaulay of Duncan.

Dwarf Corn Yields Unbeatable Flavor

It's too easy to forget the fine flavors of garden fresh fruits and vegetables if deprived of them for a few years. In fact, there are those who tell us we imagine the remembred flavor; that it's all in the mind: there's no difference between frozen corn for instance and garden fresh corn picked while the pot of water comes to boiling point for cooking.

If the argument is pursued, it will disclose that the opposition party has never experienced either the growing, picking or the eating of sweet corn on the cob.

You can have it this year by choosing a rather dwarf variety, with cobs ready for eating when only four to five inches long.

More than one seed house is offering Golden Midget, and one has Golden Miniature, growing only to about three feet in height, so that you'll get perhaps five cobs to a plant, but they will be early and of fine flavor, if you start now.

To get real benefit from these early cobbing sweet corn varieties in this coastal area you sow in peat pots or veneer bands, two seeds to each.

Remove the later germinating seedling unless it is the stronger. Germinate indoors or in an unheated greenhouse or a covered coldframe, keeping the young plants free from night or early morning frost with an extra cover of sacking or old rug.

When night frosts are over and the garden soil is warmed (it may be early June) transfer the strong young corn plants from the containers without disturbing the roots, using short rows side by side for pollination, which depends on wind.

On the same day, sow more of the seed in another nearby block of short rows.

From the April sowing in a frame we have picked first cobs on July 4. A third sowing the same week continued the supply of young cobs into September.

Spancross is another variety we have used, this with five foot height and larger cobs but still wonderfully sweet.

You might like to make Spancorss your middle crop sowing (the early June one outdoors) for August use, and follow it with the shorter period Golden Midget or Golden Miniature.

Sweet corn needs ample humus in the growing soil, for the moisture must be there to get food up to those tall plants where the sweet cobs are produced. Frequent watering retards the growth, so provide a humusy soil and a summer surface mulch over the well-watered soil to cut down on the frequency of watering.

A fully open, warm and sunny spot is needed too for the sweetest corn.

If you've never known young corn, or if you remember it from far-off days, try a planting this year of an early dwarf kind which has a chance in our cool summers to give you the milkiest kernels you've ever experienced.

SOLUTION TUESDAY

The Bridge Expert

A few years ago a neighbor of mine acquired a dog, and he was telling me of the dog's virtues:

"He's not a pedigreed dog, and he's not much to look at, but no stranger can ever come near the house without the dog letting us know about it."

"What does he do," I asked facetiously, "point or bark?"

"Heck, no," came the reply. "He crawls under the sofa."

In bridge parlance, we would call the dog's approach to strangers a "negative" one. Yet there are times when this negative, or passive, approach to an enemy can pay dividends; whereas an active, aggressive approach might bring about one's total defeat. Today's deal is submitted to illustrate these approaches.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ◇	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
2 ♣	Pass	4 ♠	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Ace of ♡.

After winning the opening lead with his ace of hearts, West continued with the heart queen, which South ruffed. Then followed the ace and another spade, East taking the second lead with his jack. Another heart lead was ruffed by South, who then played a third trump to East's queen. A fourth heart lead was now ruffed with declarer's next-to-last trump.

Declarer then led diamonds, East trumping the third lead with his last trump. He next cashed the club ace, to hand declarer a two-trick set. On the face of it, the result may appear to be "normal." But let's go back to the bidding.

When South jumped to four spades on his rebid, North thought for a full minute before passing. Obviously, with his void in spades, North was dissatisfied with spades as the trump suit. But, for all he knew, South might well have had eight spades, with perhaps four hearts on the side. If such were the case, there would no be haven in either clubs or diamonds as trumps. So North passed.

Had East taken an active approach by doubling four spades (which contract he knew he could beat), North almost certainly would have bid five clubs. South would then have corrected to five diamonds which was an unbeatable contract, with North's only losers being a heart and a club. As was stated, a passive approach (as demonstrated by East) can pay dividends.

Gray Confirmation Chances Dimming

Washington Post

WASHINGTON — About 10 days ago, the word on Capitol Hill was that "Pat Gray is entitled to an up-or-down vote."

But now the focus is shifting from sympathy for President Nixon's embattled nominee for director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, L. Patrick Gray III, to genuine concern about the effects of the fight over his confirmation on the future of the FBI.

Increasingly, senators, justice department officials and others in official Washington were saying last week that "the Bureau is entitled to an up-or-down vote" on the Gray nomination.

TRAUMA

Whatever Gray's fate may be—and few people still believe that he has a reasonable chance of being confirmed—it is clear that the first-ever public congressional review of FBI affairs and the Watergate case have been a traumatic combination for the agency.

At FBI headquarters here, some oldtimers suggest that confidence in the bureau has been eroded and that, as a result, it may lose some of its informants and be unable in the future to count on getting the "full story" in some investigations.

They cite especially the reluctance of convicted Watergate conspirator James W. McCord to talk with the FBI or other justice department officials when he decided he was ready to give new details of illegal wiretapping and political espionage.

CONCERN

McCord apparently was concerned over the fact that Gray had forwarded reports on the Watergate investigation to White House counsel John W. Dean.

Members of the Senate judiciary committee are angry with Gray for not giving them more details on the Watergate probe, but the acting FBI director has come in for at least as much trouble over what he has already revealed.

One 25-year Bureau veteran posed the problem this way:

"I always used to say to people I interviewed, 'There's only one promise I can make to you—anything you have to say to me will be kept in absolute confidence.'"

EXAGGERATION

"This has been true of thousands upon thousands of interviews over the years, and now some of the guys feel that the tradition has been wiped out in one fell swoop."

Other insiders feel that the problem has been exaggerated and that the FBI will survive this crisis as it has many others over the years.

"This won't ruin us," said one.

KILL-OR-CURE DRUG

NOGALES, Ariz. (UPI) — The same drug might save or kill a cancer patient, depending on the time of day the patient gets it, according to a researcher from the University of Minnesota.

Results of experiments on mice show that the body's own cycles and rhythms have a pronounced effect on arabinosyl cytosine, a drug commonly used on cancer patients, said Dr. Franz Halberg.

Halberg spoke Sunday to the American Cancer Society's science writers seminar.

The problem with anti-cancer drugs, he said, is that in destroying the cancer cells they also destroy the bone marrow tissue that manufactures the antibodies needed to protect against infections.

Halberg cited studies showing that cancerous mice, treated with the drug, lived or died according to the time it was given, and the dosage pattern.

The organs of the body follow "circadian rhythms," he said, becoming more or less active at certain times in a 24-hour cycle.

Mice receiving the drug is fixed doses at three-hour intervals died, Halberg said.

Those that received the same amount of the drug, but in gradually increasing and decreasing doses at three hour intervals, survived, apparently because the strongest dosages were administered when the bone marrow cells were dormant and least susceptible to damage, and the lowest dosages were given when the marrow cells were most sensitive, he said.

Oil Increases

LAGOS (AP) — Nigeria's oil production will reach 2.3 million barrels a day by the end of this year, Gen. Yakubu Gowon predicted in a budget broadcast Sunday night. Oil is expected to account for 75 per cent of the Nigerian government's anticipated gross revenue during the fiscal year 1972-73, the military ruler said.

She Smelled Gas . . .

CINCINNATI (UPI) — Mary Evans had the Cincinnati Gas and Electric Co. on the telephone, and complaining about a strong gas odor, when her apartment building exploded and collapsed.

Mrs. Evans' husband, in another room at the time, was one of seven persons killed in the Saturday night blast. Another 17 were hurt.

Firemen and police poked through the debris of the three-storey building today for possible additional victims. However, police Lt. Joe Staff said, "I think we've now accounted for the people who we know were in there."

'Iron Curtain' Over Belfast

BELFAST (UPI) — Northern Ireland emerged today from its quietest weekend in months and the army credited it to a new "Iron Curtain" surrounding Belfast's main trouble spots.

In the only major incidents during the weekend, the army said, a sniper shot and slightly wounded a British soldier in the town of Newry and a bomb wrecked a small seaside hotel 20 miles east of Belfast Saturday.

An anti-tank rocket also exploded harmlessly against a County Armagh police station Sunday and Molotov cocktails caused slight damage to three movie theatres in Londonderry.

Two bombs tossed at Belfast pubs failed to explode.

The lull came after an outbreak of bombing and shooting last week that raised the death toll in more than 3½ years of Northern Irish political and religious strife to 762.

"This has been our quietest weekend in months and, frankly, it has been achieved by walling off the two communities with what in effect is an Iron Curtain," an army spokesman said.

He referred to the sealing off of more than 150 Belfast streets with barbed wire barricades and cement to funnel all traffic through army checkpoints and cut the chances of more bloody violence between Romna Catholics and Protestants.

The operation, started early last week, was completed just before the weekend. It left only one exit road open in each of Belfast's trouble spots and soldiers searched all cars travelling on these.

"There is no doubt about it," one army officer said.

"The checkpoints stymied the gunmen and bombers. They don't like being searched."

But militant Protestant leader William Craig said the lull was only temporary.

He said during the weekend that information he received showed that the Irish Republican Army was training with new weapons in the Irish Republic for a new campaign in Northern Ireland.

Oil Aid Pledge

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada and other members of the Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development might come to the rescue if Middle East countries cut off the flow of oil to the United States or Japan, Energy Minister Donald Macdonald indicated Sunday.

He said on the CBC television program Weekend that OECD members are negotiating an oil-sharing system that would be put into effect if the Middle East oil-producing countries held back oil either to force higher prices or for political reasons.

"It is conceivable" that the oil cutoff could apply only to the United States or Japan, he said. The Middle East countries, mostly Arab, might use oil as a means of forcing the United States to change its pro-Israel policy."

Macdonald said the first concern of OECD members is to act together and share oil supplies in such a case.

Everything Christ Said But Without the Impact

Item: "The contemporary reader can sit down and in a single reading learn everything that is known about Jesus Christ." That was publisher Jack McClelland's promise in an advance note. But now that I've read the book. "Jesus," a synthesis of the gospels of Matthew, Mark, Luke and John, combined in one narrative and put into modern English, my guess is that it will antagonize those who are religious and simply confuse those of us who are not.

The fault, it seems to me, is in "the modern English" end of it, largely the work of Charles Templeton, a communicator and popularizer by profession, who, I daresay, honestly thought that Christ's message in contemporary language would have a wide appeal.

Trouble is that it is badly done, retaining little of the mysticism or the poetic beauty of the gospels' words. When Jesus speaks in this over-simplified, pedantic way — speaks, you might say, with the voice of Chuck Templeton, boy evangelist — it may be equally upsetting to believer and heretic alike. In many a passage in this work Jesus is made to sound altogether too much like the late Dale Carnegie.

The story of Christ, as the preface notes, is a story with conflict and controversy. Christ, himself, was a disturber, a revolutionary, not the gentle Jesus, meek and mild, that the modern church so often pictures. But, though Christ's words through the gospels make this clear, it is a story curiously devoid of any quality of excitement or inspiration, and, again, the fault appears to be in the dutiful paraphrasing of his words. Like one of those Biblical roles played by Charlton Heston the effect is simply an absence of believability.

"In the Law men are told, 'Love your neighbor and hate your enemy.' But here is my teaching: love your enemies. Be kind to those who hate you and pray for your persecutors. That's the kind of behaviour that distinguishes God's family. Doesn't God let his sun shine equally on good and evil men and doesn't he let the rain fall indiscriminately on the honest and the dishonest? Treat others the way you'd like them to treat you. If you love only those who love you, what's commendable about that? Scoundrels do that . . ."

An accurate interpretation? Yes, one word after the other. A reasonable reflection of the meaning of Christ's message? Certainly. But where's the inspiration that has made this man the most influential figure in the history of Western civilization? It is simply not to be found in this book.

Item: Massive advertisements today for a new soft drink, a product of Coca-Cola, called Mr. PiBB. They herald the stuff as "The new soft drink that goes down good." For what good it will do I have decided to boycott it until their ad men respect the Queen's English.

Item: The Academy Awards show on television tonight and I seem to have been a minority of one in thinking that Marlon Brando was a little ridiculous in refusing the Oscar as the year's best actor — an award I thought was a little ridiculous in the first place.

When Brando accepted the role of the Godfather in a film that glorified America's violence, a film that's made millions of dollars in profits because of its savage, realistic killings, it seems to me he forfeited any right to be Hollywood's bleeding heart for the motion picture industry's indignities against the American Indians.

In "Last Tango in Paris," it seems, Brando has taken a role calculated to make the bundle because of its shock effect, again, if we're to believe the British critics, unjustified by any pretensions of creative excellence. If he gets the Oscar for that who will be up there on stage to refuse it? The Happy Hooker?

Item: Two of my favorite women, one of whom I've yet to meet, are honored as "Great Dames" in the newest Maclean's and I must say they fit exactly the arbitrary definition: "Gutsy, original women . . . who are willing to grow up, to leave cuteness and compliance behind."

One is our own Alice Munro, whose novel "Lives of Girls and Women", now heading for the best seller list in the United States, is the finest piece of writing that's pleasured me in the last 10 years. Someday I'll get up enough nerve to ask her for an interview.

The other is my old friend Molly Bobak, the painter, who now lives in Fredericton, a women whose joy in living is the most contagious of any person I've known. Molly is my age, which astonishes me, but she told Maclean's interviewer: "There's always a renewal thing that comes along. It can happen at the oddest times, say just as you happen to be walking through a clump of trees by the St. John River, and you can almost jump in the air and hug your ribs . . . you're just a mass of flames, absolutely glowing. There's an enormous sense of being in tune with yourself."

My conviction that women get more out of life than men is given another boost.

Prisoners 'Counsel Counsellors'

By DAVID MAY
Times Staff

A man who escaped from William Head penitentiary told provincial court today the inmates know more than their counsellors.

John Wignall, 33, said he and another man decided to escape after they were turned down on a request to return to the B.C. Penitentiary in New Westminster where they could get "more work" and take further upgrading courses.

"You're counselling counsellors" at William Head, Wignall told the court.

He and William Roy Skelton, 40, were each sentenced to six extra months by Judge William Ostler on charges of being unlawfully at large.

The two men were picked up Sunday afternoon in a Victoria hotel. They were reported missing from William Head at 11:30 Friday night.

Wignall said he viewed his future at William Head as "stagnating for another year."

Skelton told a similar story of rejected transfer applications, claiming he had asked to be returned to the penitentiary three times.

Ostler said he was surprised that the "enlightened" programs for the rehabilitation of prisoners met with such responses.

"You can't blame the public for being fed up with escapes," he said.

Skelton was serving three years for breaking and entering with intent and possession of housebreaking tools. He was due for release in May 1974.

Wignall was serving three years, two months and seven days for possession of stolen property, possession of heroin, two counts of heroin possession for the purpose of trafficking and driving a car while prohibited. He was to be released in June 1974.

The weekend's escapes brings the total to seven since Jan. 1. Of the 32 men who escaped from William Head in 1972 eight are still at large.

In March, Solicitor-general Warren Allmand announced that William Head will be changed from a minimum-security penitentiary to medium security. Fences will be raised and extended along the shoreline, extra guards are being hired, observation posts built and patrol cars being ordered.

The change of status, he said, is necessary because of overcrowded conditions in other B.C. prisons.

Metchosin residents were up in arms when William Head was made a "temporary camp" but withdrew their objections when they were assured that the institution would never be anything else than minimum-security.

Anderson Elected By Slim Margin

Malcolm Anderson, a 38-year-old stocks and bonds salesman, of 3965 Telegraph Bay Road, Saanich, was sworn in as a Victoria alderman today after being elected by a narrow margin and by a fraction of Victoria's voting public.

He beat his nearest competitor out of six candidates Bob Ellis by 37 votes — 1,206 to 1,169. There was a recount.

Anderson said today he favored a policy of openness with the press and public, adding that he felt he had gained a reputation for receptiveness during his years as public relations man for his brother David Anderson, leader of the provincial Liberal Party.

He ran on a campaign of "look forward, choose carfully, and never forget that we cannot stand still," as he put it in a leaflet sent only to property-owning electors.

"Our choice is between controlled development and certain deterioration or the city . . . blending the best of the past into our plans for the future," the leaflet said.

Anderson caused some surprise among reporters and election officials by not being present for the returns Saturday night at the central polling office. He said this morning he had a prior business commitment. "I work for a living and some things you just can't pass over."

Other candidates, with the exception of election veteran Bill Scott were on hand to see the following final figures:

After Anderson and Ellis, Margaret Richards — 844; Jim Beaubien — 451; Ed Kop — 359; Bill Scott — 158.

Only 19 per cent of the 22,408 eligible voters turned out, although that was still more than elected Ald. Alf Hood in January 1972 when 17 per cent voted.

Sales Not Hit by Hike In Foreign Car Prices

Despite price increases of up to 10 per cent on foreign built cars, sales are not suffering, according to import dealers in Victoria.

Currency fluctuations around the world would seem to make the imports less competitive with North American built cars, but easy credit and effective marketing are combining to maintain the imports' share of sales.

Three dealers polled by the Times agree that car buyers are not concerned enough about a few hundred dollars to suddenly decide against buying an import.

"You pick out the suit you want, and then you look at the price tag."

Another dealer believes the conventional idea of buying an import because it's cheapest does not apply to many import buyers.

Brian Holley of Brian Holley Motors Ltd. says the least expensive models are not the big sellers. Holley notes that the Swedish-built Volvo, with a basic price of $4,500, is selling better this year than ever before, despite a recent 4.5% price hike blamed on currency changes.

New money values forced a 7.1 per cent rise in the price of Volkswagen prices Feb. 13, but Egon Baumann of Douglas Volkswagen Ltd. says this has "no effect" on sales.

The Volkswagen price increase added about $200 to the bill on a basic Super Beetle, bringing it to about $2,840.

On a $5,000 Audi, the increase is about $350. Baumann and Holley both say the buying public is looking for value when it buys Audis or Volvos, so the price is not an overwhelming factor.

"I think it's got to be the concept" that people are more interested in buying, Holley says.

The Japanese imports will be hit sometime next month with a 10 per cent increase caused by revalued currencies.

"But this is only a temporary thing," says Beaulieu. By September, this competitive advantage for the American car manufacturers will be wiped out by a United Auto Workers wage settlement.

Besides, people are so adapted to price increases tied to inflation, the 10 per cent increase won't affect sales as much as might be expected.

Beaulieu points to the last increase in Japanese car prices caused by currency revaluation about a year ago.

"It didn't affect the sales . . . the demand was still that strong." People bought the cars anyway.

He points out also that earnings in British Columbia are high, people have money.

"You have to have reservations to get into a restaurant."

The April price hikes will push a Toyota Corolla from $2,190 (basic) to $2,400, a four-door Corona from $2,895 to almost $3,200.

One factor in the public's willingness to pay the new prices may be that used cars are fetching a better price. If the trade-in price is up, the two or three hundred more needed to buy a new car is not difficult to bear.

Beaulieu says some used cars are selling for the same price this year as last.

The January-February registrations of foreign-built cars in Victoria show the imports are maintaining their share of the market, Beaulieu says.

The basic factor in the price of cars is the internal economic climate of the United States, Beaulieu adds. The market here is closely affected by it.

Until the United States takes real measures to restructure its economy and currency, the demand for imports will not likely change.

At any rate, the imports shouldn't suffer any real damage until at least 1974, he says.

Labor Meet Moved Here

Labor Minister Bill King said today that a labor-management conference planned for the middle of this month at Harrison Hot Springs now will be held in Victoria.

King said that because the legislative session will still be going on through the three days of the conference — April 13, 14 and 15 — he did not want to have his senior department officials out of town.

CLOSING 'ABSURD'

Attorney-General Alex Macdonald said today the closing of liquor stores on byelection days is "absurd" and that the government will be taking a "very close look" at alternative recommendations.

He was asked to comment on the situation after Saturday's aldermanic byelection in Victoria, in which only 19 per cent of the electorate voted.

Liquor stores located within city limits were closed for the day.

Macdonald said the question of liquor store hours on byelection and election days would likely be referred by the cabinet to the proposed new Liquor Board, which is being set up through amendments introduced recently to the Liquor Act.

Appointment by Minister Ends Vacancy Confusion

The vacant seat on Saanich school board has finally been filled after more than three months of confusion over appointment procedures.

Dr. Ronald Tinney, educational psychologist at the University of Victoria, topped the polls in a plebiscite held Saturday in Saanich, and Education Minister Eileen Dailly announced his appointment as trustee this morning.

Five people submitted their names for consideration in the plebiscite, which was authorized by the department of education to determine the community's choice for trustee.

According to the Public Schools Act the minister of education must appoint a trustee in such circumstances, but Dailly decided to hold a plebiscite to gauge public opinion on a successor.

Turnout was small for the plebiscite which saw only 358 or nine per cent of 4,486 possible voters cast ballots.

Final vote totals, submitted to the department of education this morning were Tinney — 124; Frank Machine — 105; Mrs. Margaret Protopappas — 69; Donald Grafton — 39; and Sidney Watson — 21.

Oak Bay to Pick Centre Experts

Oak Bay council is expected to decide tonight which experts it will consult on the building of the municipality's $1.6 million sports complex.

Recreation committee chairman, Ald. Douglas Watts said today that he, Alds. Norman Pimlott, Douglas McLelland and municipal engineer-planner Geoffrey White visited several mainland sports centres during the weekend.

Watts said the Coquitlam facility, built about a year ago, was superior to some of the others the group toured.

"It has a lower roof than some we saw," he said, "and had a steel deck, rather than timber."

Watts said the Coquitlam centre also had one wall of slatted wood that helped muffle noise.

"The facilities we saw with high-pitched roofs and timber decking had a tremendous noise problem," he said, "and we also found that these were faced with poor ice problems under warm weather conditions."

Watts said the centres visited had rinks that cost anywhere between $450,000 and $600,000.

"The difference in price makes quite a difference," he said, "in what kind of a building you can have.

"We have a good idea now of what we can get for our money."

In its $1.6 million budget, Oak Bay has estimated $530,000 for an ice arena and $155,000 for a lobby annex, which will service both the rink and the pool.

Levi's Home Hit by Fire

A fire at 1530 Purcell Place, the home of Norman Levi, minister of rehabilitation and social improvement, caused $1,500 damage Saturday night, a Victoria fire department official said today.

The fire broke out around 9:30 p.m. as Levi's 17-year-old daughter, Tamar, was deep-frying potatoes. Hot fat overflowed, burst into flames and set fire to kitchen cabinets.

No one was injured.

New Wing for Victoria General?

The first part of the $22.5 million hospital referendum approved by Capital Regional District ratepayers Saturday will be spent on detailed planning for improvements, regional hospital board chairman Art Young said today.

Young said he expects the first step will be requests by various hospital boards for money for future planning "so basically there will be nothing visible for 12 to 18 months."

"I hope we will be in a position to give the green light to some major renovations at Victoria General and Royal Jubilee. At Victoria General possibly an entire wing will be replaced."

Young said he was delighted at the "excellent" yes vote in Saturday's referendum but the turnout was "a little disappointing."

The referendum gained 83.8 per cent support throughout the region. There were 10,411 ballots cast, or 10.93 per cent of the eligible voters.

Only one polling station failed to give 60 per cent support to the referendum. This was North Pender Island, where 57 voted yes and 32 no, for 57 per cent.

Young said he hopes the referendum will be the last for ratepayers.

He said he will recommend to the regional board that it support a proposal to the Union of B.C. Municipalities or to Municipal Affairs Minister James Lorimer that the building of schools and hospitals be handled directly by the provincial government.

"These referendums just don't seem sensible," he said, pointing to the low turnout and adding that "the people on the Capital Regional board were all elected with more than an 11 per cent turnout. It can be argued that a decision reached at this level (about hospital building) would be perhaps more democratic than a public vote."

Fear of Snakes: Think of It as Another Prejudice

it's our environment

By THE ENVIRONMENTAL CENTRE
Of Greater Victoria

Occaisonally, some of us have trouble accepting our environment as it is. Usually, in these cases, some understanding and a little tolerance are necessary.

QUESTION: It's getting about the time of year that the snakes come out around our garden. Our compost box seems to fairly crawl with them in spring and early summer. I know the snakes we have aren't dangerous, but I'm scared to death of them and as a result I don't like even being out in the yard. Can you suggest something we could use to repel snakes? I'm thinking of something that wouldn't be dangerous or harmful, of course. — Mrs. O. M.

ANSWER: True, your garden snakes aren't dangerous — they can be considered beneficial. But you aren't alone in your fear of the creatures.

Try to think of the fear as a prejudice that you can overcome.

Snakes, of course, are really fascinating creatures. If you can spare time and have the patience, try snake-watching some sunny day. If you're very quiet, use binoculars and are lucky, you mibht be able to watch one of your slithering reptiles going about his daily routines unaware that you are watching.

You'll find they eat worms, beetles, mice and other small mammals. Stalking a snake can be difficult because they're likely to notice you and merely try to flee. And if you come upon one that has just dined, he may not go hunting for food again for hours of maybe even days.

If you want to discourage snakes from your compost box, try chopping up some onions and sprinkling them over the heap. We've heard that onions will keep snakes out of the compost and out of the way of your shovel.

No doubt they frequent your compost box because that's where they find the biggest, juiciest worms.

QUESTION: I have some sort of a small bug eating my house plants. It's ppobably a small spider because it leaves tiny webs on the leaves. What would you use to kill the pests? — K. E.

ANSWER: For pests such as red spider mites and aphids, we'd advise you to wash the plant in lukewarm water to which a little mild soap (not detergent) has been added. Dip the plant "headfirst" into the suds and use your fingers to gently but thoroughly clean the leaves and stems. You might have to wrap the pot in some cloth or aluminum foil so the soil won't fall out into the water when you invert the plant for its bath. Rinse the soap away with another dip in plain water. You should repeat the treatment every three or four days at first if the plants are really plagued, to wash off the newcomers as they hatch.

Don't worry about this treatment being too rough for your plants — the leaves and stems of most plants are a lot tougher than you may think, and can easily stand some gentle scrubbing or showering from time to time. In fact, they'll probably thank you with invigorated new growth. We wouldn't suggest this treatment for especially delicate plants such as African violets, however, although one source tells us that even these plants love a shower bath, provided that its done with clear lukewarm water using a very fine mist spray, and provided that the plants are kept in a warm spot, but out of the sun, until dry.

Remember that outdoors in nature, plants frequently are subjected to hard showers.

This is nature's way of keeping the plant healthy. A regular dip or a shower is good for house plants whether they are plagued by insects or not. However, the water does wash nutrients from the leaves. In nature the nutrients are collected in the soil. If you dip your plants, you lose the nutrients, so don't neglect giving them regular feedings.

QUESTION: Is atmospheric lead pollution monitored in Victoria? If so, how do levels compare, with those elsewhere? — N. H.

ANSWER: Yes, lead is one of the air pollutants sampled in Victoria. While it is difficult to compare air pollution data from different cities, Victoria appears to have a typical amount of lead pollutants in the air. Since much of the lead comes from automobile exhausts, larger cities tend to have more lead pollution.

Looking, for example, at the figures for January, 1972, Victoria's Herald Street air sampler collected a mean of 0.7 micrograms of lead per cubic meter of air. The comparable figure for Lethbridge was 0.4; for Winnipeg, 0.7; for Sarnia, 0.8, for Toronto, 0.7 to 2.4 (more than one station) and for Montreal 1.0 to 2.2.

Naturally, we can expect there'd be much more lead found at ground levels along busy streets such as Douglas than in air above the Victoria Police Station. Many studies have shown alarmingly high concentrations of lead in vegetation and in dirty snow beside busy streets.

If you have a question about any subject involving our environment, we'd like to hear from you. You may leave the question at the Environmental Centre office at 508 Fort Street or mail it directly to "It's Our Environment," care of the Times, 2621 Douglas Street, Victoria.

'Social Calories' Can Be Planned

This is the 14th in a series of 15 articles in which Josephine Lowman, author of WHY GROW OLD? and leading authority on health and beauty, tells you exactly what to do to lose 20 pounds in eight weeks. You may want to save these menus and exercises to refer back to during the eight-week period.

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

I wish I could drop in on some of you who are following my eight-week beauty improvement plan to see for myself how you are getting along. It would be so exciting! This is the seventh week of that course. Some of you may have already lost all of the weight you wish to lose while others still have too many pounds.

Reducing would be so much easier if it were not for social life, but then life would not be nearly as much fun. However, it is fairly simple to stay reasonably within your caloric allowable and still please your hostess.

You can take medium portions, eat one roll instead of two, leave gravy or sauces off of your entree or take only a small amount. Accept dessert but make it a small portion or leave some on your plate.

Alcoholic drinks are high in caloric count and have no nutritional value. Therefore, they have no place on a reducing djet. Also, stay away from dips, nuts and cream cheese canapes. Choose the carrot or celery curls, shrimp or salmon or mini chicken sandwiches. If you do take a drink, make it only one and nurse it along.

You can afford to spend more calories at social occasions if you prepare for them ahead. For instance, if you are going to a party, diet for a few days beforehand. In this way you will have saved a few calories to spend as you wish at the festive occasion. Or, if you eat more than you should, diet for a few days afterward.

Hostesses spend a great deal of thought and work planning or preparing delicious food for their guests and it is disappointing if guests do not seem to enjoy it. One of the neatest tricks which will keep both your hostess and your figure happy is to eat very slowly. Concentrate on the conversation. So long as your plate is not empty you will not be urged to have a second serving.

When eating in a restaurant, it is up to you. You can ask that your meat or fish be broiled, that vinegar and oil be brought so you can mix your own salad dressing. You can request that gravy be left off. You do no have to eat crackers and butter with your soup. You can order a clear soup instead of a cream soup and have a fruit compote rather than cheesecake. It is really in your own hands.

There are only two more weeks left for those of you who started this course at the beginning. Others have more weeks to go, and some of you may want to start right now. You can! It is not too late.

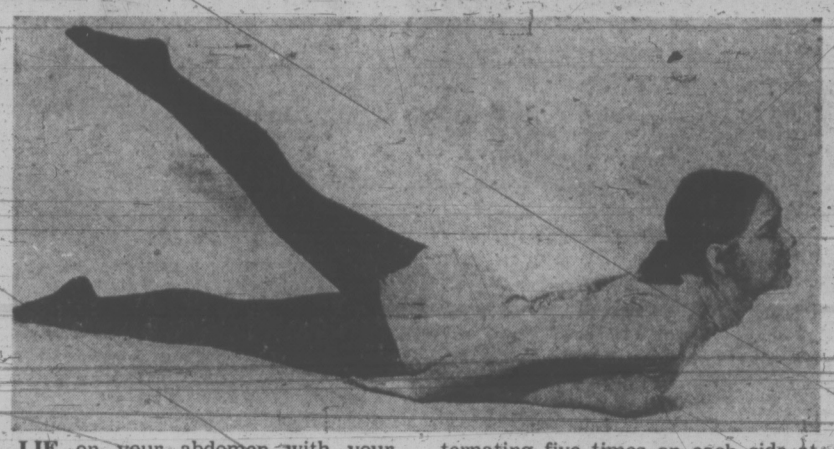
I have just received this letter which I think will be encouraging to all of you.

"Dear Josephine Lowman:

I want to tell you right away what wonderful success I have had with Bip. In a little less than six weeks I have lost 15 pounds and inches and inches. My whole outlook has changed. I cannot understand now why I let that overweight burden me all these years. I guess I did not realize what it was doing to my life until I lost it. My husband is so happy. He says I am like I used to be, which is gay and happy. My chronic fatigue has disappeared. I feel young and great!"

If any of you want to start Bip now for a loss of from 15 to 20 pounds in the next eight weeks, you may want my Bip Kit which gives you complete directions. If so send 50 cents and a self-addressed, stamped, long envelope with your request to Josephine Lowman in care of The Times.

Next: You Have Reached Goal, Hold Your Weight Down.



LIE on your abdomen with your head and shoulders and your left leg as far from the floor as you can. Lower to floor. This time lift your right leg and your head and chest and return to the floor. Continue, alternating five times on each side at first. This will strengthen the back, firm the hips and is corrective to round shoulders. Do this exercise slowly.

Talker Needs Talk

DEAR ABBY: If you have ever had this problem in your column, I must have missed it. It is one that several of us share.

We have a dear friend who talks too much. She is bright, attractive, and has many fine qualities, but her endless, detailed monologues are boring and exhausting.

Her husband is intelligent and articulate, but he doesn't get a chance to open his mouth because his wife always has the floor. If someone else is talking, she interrupts and proceeds to dominate the conversation.

She has always been a talker, but lately it's gotten to the point where our husbands don't care to spend an evening listening to her.

If you or any of your readers know how to reach a person with this fault, please tell us. Thank you, and please don't use my name — Name Withheld

DEAR NAME: The only effective way to reach a nonstop talker is via the direct route. One of her best friends should tell her privately, gently, but emphatically that she really should not talk so much, and give others a chance. And since you're the friend who wrote the letter, perhaps you're the one to tell her. It would be an act of kindness.

DEAR ABBY: I am writing to you because all the etiquette books dodge this question. Is it proper to tip the owner of a barbershop or beauty parlor? I understand if you do, some owners are insulted.

I go regularly to a barbershop, where I tip the employee. However, from time to time, the owner of the shop cuts my hair himself. I know him personally, and know that he makes a good living from the shop, so I never tip him.

My wife tells me that she runs up against the same situation in her beauty shop where the owners sometimes do the work.

What is the correct procedure — if there is one? — Puzzled

DEAR PUZZLED: Offer. If the owner is insulted, he will let you know it, in which case don't "insult" him again.

DEAR ABBY: The letter in your column about hunting prompts this letter. Hunting is a sport to which I am morally opposed. My husband knows my objections, but, since he is an adult, I realize that his decisions are his own, and it is with his own conscience he must wrestle. I don't participate in his hunting trips, and have no intentions of doing so.

The problem centres around our 12-year-old son. My husband wants to buy a gun and introduce him to the sport. Our son, eager to participate in activities with his father, is excited by the prospect.

I don't feel that humans have the right to kill animals unless their lives are directly endangered, or unless they need the meat for survival. We are an upper-middle-class urban family, and neither of these situations is likely to occur.

My husband says that he wants our son to know the joy of our rapidly vanishing wilderness areas. I say, "Fine take him camping and teach him the craft of the woodsman."

He claims he wants our son to know the challenge of stalking elusive game.

"I say, "Fine . . . let him stalk with a camera. And if he needs to have a trophy . . . bring home some pictures."

He says he wants our son to be skillful with a rifle. I don't mind that. We have access to an excellent skeet-shooting range and instructors.

Finally, and worst in my opinion, my husband says he wants our son to be a man, and that my refusal to sanction the hunting will turn him into a sissy.

Abby, to me a true man (or woman) is one who rejoices in the beauty of life, who works hard to preserve all of that beauty, who respects mankind and all animals, and who kills only as a necessity and never for pleasure or sport.

Many of our traditional and superficial concepts of manhood and womanhood are being questioned these days, and I think that the question of hunting as a means of developing masculinity deserves being considered by more Americans.—Animal Lover

DEAR ABBY: Last year I was a volunteer for the Cancer Society crusade. While working on the campaign I learned more about the "danger signals" and made an appointment for my husband to see a doctor. Immediately following the examination he was operated on for cancer. Thank God they caught it in the early stages. And thank God I volunteered. Believe me, when they called me again this year I said yes! —Got More Than I Gave.

Jobs That Satisfy

TORONTO (CP) — A York University economics lecturer said Saturday that the federal government should try to encourage creation of interesting and satisfying jobs.

Fred Lazar made the comment at a panel discussion on work and job creation, chaired by Liberal Senator Eugene Forsey.

Cam Mackie, an official in the department of manpower and immigration and a panel member, agreed with Mr. Lazar.

"I don't see any advantage in forcing people into low-paying, lousy, dirty jobs," he said.

Mr. Mackie, director of special programs for the department, said there have been problems with some jobs his department has provided—mainly shift work and low wages.

Earlier the conference was told by Jim Coburn, a Toronto railway worker, that Canadian Pacific Railway recently hired 74 men to work on rail gangs but "only four stayed."

Paul McRae, Liberal member of Parliament for Thunder Bay, suggested that earlier retirement and voluntary sabbatical leaves in many industries would create new and interesting job openings for younger workers.

'Living Dressing' Found

NOGALES, Ariz. (AP) — The fetal life-support system that is discarded after birth contains a "living dressing" for adults, reports a California researcher.

Dr. John Trelford of the University of California at Davis reported Sunday about experiments with the amnion, a membranous sac that surrounds the fetus.

He told an American Cancer Society seminar for science writers that the amniotic membrane could be used to treat birth defects. He said it could be formed into a tunnel beneath the skin to drain fluid from the skull of hydrocephalic babies or could be used to correct urinary tract deformities.

An immediate use of the amnion is as "a living dressing" for covering surgical defects and burns, preventing infection and the escape of body fluid and promoting healing, he said. The membrane possibly could be banked for later use.

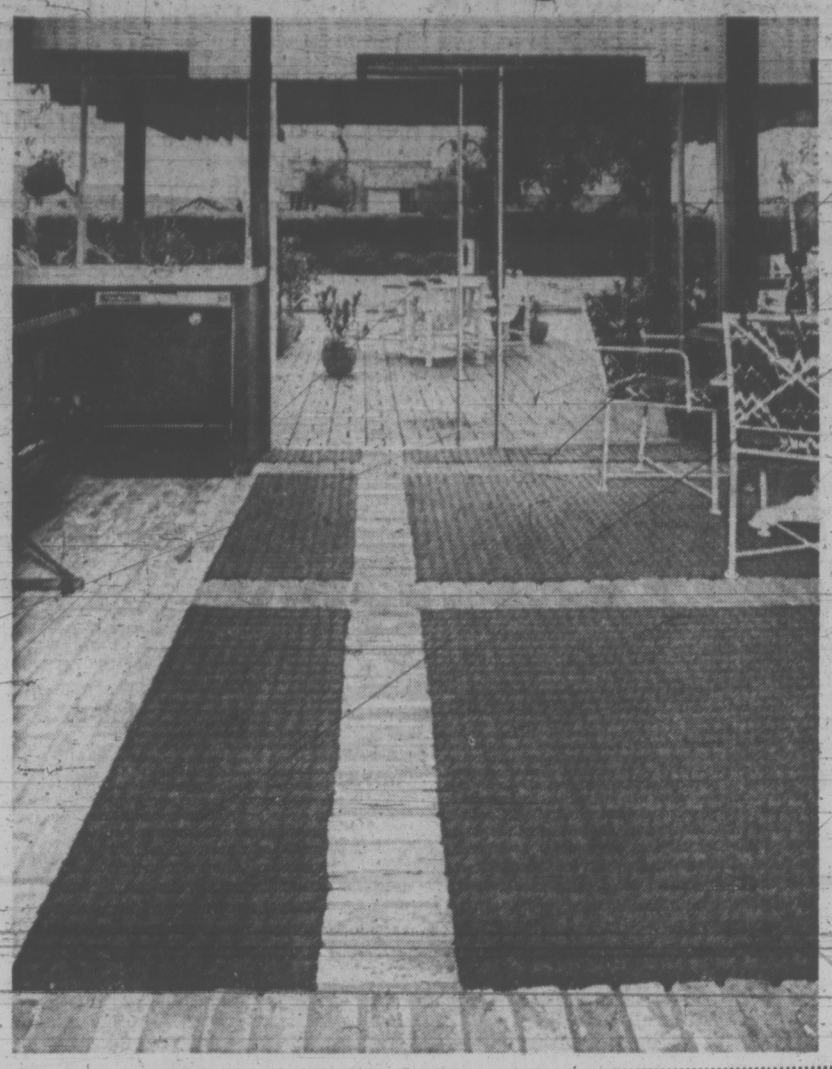
Brick and Carpet Together



Modern conveniences make housework easier. New products and design concepts offer unlimited ideas for house interiors and you can experiment with color and material combinations to the limit of your imagination.

An example is shown here. To us, who were brought up on linoleum floors for the kitchen, this combination of used brick and carpeting would have been unthinkable several years ago. But it is smashing, it is smart, and it has impact because of the unexpectedness. Without indoor-outdoor carpeting, so successful for kitchen and patio, such a floor would not be possible.

Instead of relying upon a pattern in the brick or in the carpeting, the whole floor is pattern in the use of the materials. Brick covers the floor solidly in the work areas, next to the counters, and carpeting takes over in the family room area on the other side of the room. The brick breaks up the carpeting, however, with carefully placed lines, one brick wide, just 18 inches in from the edges, and down the centre.

The difference in thickness of the materials must be allowed for in order to maintain a level floor. Otherwise you have a built-in safety hazard. Brick veneer, which is more thin than regular brick, could be used, but even so, the underlying floor should be installed at levels that compensate for the difference in thickness between the brick and the carpeting.

Learning to Be a Parent? It Doesn't Come Naturally

BANFF (CP) — There are schools to teach North Americans every skill from boxing to knitting, but good parenthood, the most fundamental human skill, is too often left to develop by chance, psychiatrist Robert Liberman complains.

"People are ssumed to have the competence to be parents when they are biologically mature and are able to produce children, but it isn't so," he said in an interview after a speech to the fifth Banff International Conference on Behavior modification.

Liberman, a psychiatry professor at the UCLA Medical School in Los Angeles, said development of good parents is "left to chance."

People have to learn to raise children the same way they learned to swim—from somebody else. Most learn from their parents, but if they have not done a good job, their mistakes can become a crippling inheritance passed on from generation to generation, he said.

To break this chain, special child-rearing classes should be made available in which psychologists or psychiatrists can explain to parents with problem children just where they're going wrong and how they can change, he said.

Such parents will usually find they are making one or more of four big mistakes including:

—Paying attention to the child's inappropriate or "bad" behavior and ignoring his good behavior;

—Being inconsistent in the way they respond to the child's behavior;

MAUREEN'S OFFERING

By MARY MOORE

Some Monday mornings we have a hey-day in this office for I entertain over the weekend and cook like crazy. Then at 8 a.m. Maureen arrives loaded with goodies she has tested.

This morning our gift to you is Maureen's orange cake. At last she has found an orange cake that tastes orangey. The color is a sunny yellow and the texture is tender. The topping is applied on removal from oven.

ORANGE CAKE

Topping: grated rind of 2 oranges,

2 tsp. orange juice (see below),

3 tbsp. granulated sugar,

Batter:

1 c. butter,

3 eggs,

1 tsp. lemon juice,

2¼ c. unsifted cake and pastry flour,

2½ tsp. baking powder,

¼ tsp. salt,

Make topping first by grating orange rind very fine. Squeeze juice from oranges and mix 2 teaspoons of it with the rind, reserving remainder for cake batter. Stir in granualted sugar. Set aside.

To make batter in large beater bowl cream butter with sugar until light and fluffy. Add eggs, one at a time, beating after each addition. Stir in lemon juice.

In another bowl combine flour, baking powder and salt. Add flour mixture to creamed mixture alternately with ⅔ cup orange juice. (If you did not get ⅔ cup of juice and you have no more available, make it up to ⅔ cup by adding water.) Beat with electric beater 4 minutes.

Butter an 8x8 inch square cake pan. Pour batter in. Bake at 375 deg. Fahr. 35 to 40 minutes or until done. As soon as it is removed from oven gently and evenly spread topping on and sprinkle cherries over. Let cool. To serve cut in squares in pan.

Write to Mary Moore, 32 Churchill Ave., Hamilton, Ont., enclosing stamped self-addressed envelope and 10 cents for each recipe specified.

Committee of Nine: Hand Across Atlantic

It's amazing what a week's mail will turn up in the way of tidbits of news from friends and readers of this column who, in the goodness of their hearts, attempt to keep me well informed.

For instance, a recent copy of the debates of the Senate, that came from a friend in Ottawa.

In it is a brief explanation about the Committee of Nine, sparked through the fact that Hon. John B. Aird, Toronto senator, had just been appointed to that committee.

Now, I must confess, that while I may have known in a vague sort of way there was a Committee of Nine, I would not have been able to say positively why it was formed or what it did.

So it was interesting to read in the Hansard, a description of the committee and something of its aims and objects.

I imagine if a poll of readers of my column was taken, the majority would confess to much the same degree of ignorance in this connection as myself.

Right now I'm gambling on that fact in order to pass on to you the information I found in the Hansard.

According to Leopold Langlois and Jacques Flynn, presently acting government leader of the Senate and its opposition leader, the Committee of Nine is a very prestigious body.

Its composed of some of the most prominent European and North American statesmen including Lord Harlech of the United Kingdom, Senator Manlio Brosio of Italy, Senator Jacob Jarvits of the United States, and others.

Task of these eminently well-qualified men is of vital importance to us all as is their mandate which is to conduct a major reassessment of the political, social, economic and inter-parliamentary relations between western Europe and North America.

This year the committee will offer its findings and recommendations regarding questions in international commercial and monetary affairs, arms control and security measures in Europe as well as for new political institutions and approaches in American-European relations.

Jacques Flynn reminded his colleagues that ties between western Europe and the Americans must be kept strong, and it is bodies such as the Committee of Nine which will see to it that this is done, and done in such a way as to ensure that everyone benefits.

Hansard records that the new committee member, John Aird, has been chairman of the Senate's foreign affairs committee since 1968 "and has been an outstanding success in that post."

In 1971 he was named chairman of the Canadian section of the Canada-United States Permanent Joint Board of Defence.

Senator Langlois said "I am certain that the abilities which he and his colleagues have undertaken to perform . . . and that he is eminently qualified to succeed his illustrious Canadian predecessor on the Committee of Nine, the late Lester B. Pearson."

"Those are large shoes to fill," Jacques Flynn pointed out, "but we, on this side, are convinced he will do an outstanding job of it."

Well! There you are! If you have read this far you now know a little more about the Committee of Nine than you did before.

Not much perhaps. But enough to start a trend of thought that might lead to a more in-depth study.

Hope I haven't bored you!

Did you know that on a rainy day you need more water to boil potatoes than in good weather? And did you realize that when you bake potatoes wrapped in foil, they will be steamed and not baked?

Also remember, when you bake potatoes while other foods are in the oven, to increase the baking time by 10-20 minutes.

To get the utmost food value from boiled potatoes, cook them in their jackets in as little water as possible. If you must peel them, don't forget that the larger the amount of cut potato surfaces, the greater the loss of nutrients.

These are only a few examples of the potato wisdom culled from Potato Medley from P.E.I. Every recipe in this folder was tested by the home economics department of the University of Prince Edward Island.

Among the tempting potato recipes is a timely one for some luscious hot cross buns. As a special Easter treat for the youngsters, you may also want to make potato candy, chocolates or dainties.

PEOPLE TOOK STATUE TO PROVE A POINT

SAN FELIPE LOS ALSATI, Mexico (UPI) — Residents stole their own archeological treasure from this mountain village to prove a government-appointed guard was incompetent, the attorney-general's office said.

The villagers were unhappy with the guard assigned to an archeological zone that contains remnants of the Tarascan Indian culture.

Last week a 3½-ton statue of an animal disappeared from the ruins.

"The piece had been removed by the neighbors one night because of bickering with the guard of the zone," the attorney-general's office said. The statue turned up later in a church.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Forecast for Tuesday, April 3, 1973
By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21 - April 19): You get chance for proverbial second opportunity, a fresh start, the capability of erasing past mistakes. Make the most of it. Key is to be yourself, not an imitation or a robot. Be original, insisting on your own style.

TAURUS (April 20 - May 20): Some comment on your appearance, stating it has "changed." Aura of mystery, perhaps glamor, surrounds you. Don't reveal all you know. Be discreet. What you fear will evaporate. Trust intuition.

GEMINI (May 21 - June 20): Some desires are due to be revised. You meet people and see them in different light. What you imagined is not flattered by hard light of facts. Means be grown-up enough to accept people for what they are, not for what you wish they could be.

CANCER (June 21 - July 22): One you indulge is not being fair. Some of your ambitions could be fulfilled if you rid yourself of emotional anchor. What appears to be a pressing problem is solved by routine procedure.

LEO (July 23 - Aug. 22): Study Cancer message. Find out why some persons, previously friendly, seem aloof. A bit of analyzing could result in "remarkable" comeback. Gemini, Virgo individuals are likely to be involved.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 - Sept. 22): What you saved or collected proves of value. Controversy could surround sale or purchase. Be diplomatic in explaining to family member. High-handed methods will not suffice. Be willing to listen as well as assert.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 - Oct. 22): Lie low. Explosive situation exists. Don't stick out your chin. Caution now truly is the better part of valor. Where marriage, partnership enter picture, you must step lightly. You are due to be surprised as secret income information leaks.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 - Nov. 21): Some areas which were hidden or forbidden, come under scorching spotlight. Nothing is apt to occur in lukewarm fashion. Know it and prepare accordingly. Relationship which means much points in special direction.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 - Dec. 21): Accept facts as they exist in connection with project, relationship. One who has deceived in past is quite willing to try a repeat performance. Be on guard. If you care for yourself, others will care for you, too.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 - Jan. 19): Friend in high place uses unorthodox method to promote cause beneficial to you. Maintain self-esteem. Others have confidence in you—return favor to yourself. Despite obstacle, you will succeed.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 - Feb. 18): It might be best to stick to what is familiar. Journey now could be ill-advised. Key is to be versatile without becoming confused. Cancer individual is in picture. Find out what is needed at home.

PISCES (Feb. 19 - March 20): You can reach far, but strive to understand rules, limitations. You are in position for solid advance. Important to keep track of what you have, what is expendable, what should be reinforced.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you have fine sense of humor, a tendency to put on weight, an appreciation for the arts. You are independent, creative and attract to you many born under Sagittarius. August could be your most significant month of 1973.

Sham Again Best in West

By The Associated Press

Sham regained his spot as the best three-year-old in the West when he outcharged favored Linda's Chief to win the $124,400 Santa Anita Derby Saturday and stamp himself a top contender for the Kentucky Derby May 5.

Sigmund Sommer's colt, ridden by Laffit Pincay Jr., travelled the 1⅛ miles in one minute, 47 seconds to beat Linda's Chief by 2½ lengths with Out of the East in third place among the six entries, another 2½ lengths behind.

Aisco Stable's Royal and Regal went to the lead at the break and led every step of the way to win the $130,200 Florida Derby at Gulfstream Park.

Forego, the 2-to-1 favorite with the crowd of 23,908 was second—three lengths behind Royal and Regal and 1¼ lengths ahead of Restless Jet. Our Native finished fourth.

In the Louisiana Derby at New Orleans, longshot Leo's Pisces romped past favored Angle Light in the stretch for a half-length triumph in the $75,000 major prep for three-year-old horses.

Jockey Bobby Breen spurred the Double Alpha Stable's brown colt to a decision over Navajo, from the Stevenson Stump Stable, while Angle Light, owned by the Whittaker Stable from Canada, faded in the final strides to finish a length behind the winner in third place.

Angle Light, who is expected to team with the sensational Secretariat in the Kentucky Derby at Louisville in May, was the even-money favorite and jumped into a two-length lead at the head of the stretch when pace-setting Proud and Bold hit the rail and fell back into the pack.

Grimm Recovers To Win

Wayne Grimm recovered from an early upset to dominate competition Sunday in the second annual motocross held by the Victoria Motorcycle Club in the Butler Brothers' gravel pit on Sooke Road.

Grimm tangled with a novice rider at the start of the first heat in the 250-cc class and was last off the line, but he went on to win all three heats as well as over-all laurels and later won the grand prix event.

Bob Underhill of Vancouver placed second over-all in both the 250-cc class and the grand prix. Pat Smith of Victoria finished third in the class and Kevin Simpson of Victoria was third in the grand prix.

Wayne Peet, K. Baldham and Stan Gibb finished 1-2-3 in the 125-cc competition.

Soccer Okays National Team

EDMONTON (CP) — The Canadian Soccer Association concluded three days of debate Sunday with approval of a program designed to upgrade soccer in Canada.

The national executive senior amateur challenge cup tournament to begin this summer in St. John's, Nfld., and gave approval in principle to:

- A national team that would be based in Vancouver.
- Formation of a national soccer league with teams in B.C. and Ontario.
- An international minor soccer tournament in a prairie city this summer.

The program was designed by Bruce Thomas, a Toronto lawyer commissioned to study soccer by the federal government.

The national tournament will bring together the amateur champions from British Columbia, the Prairies, Ontario, Quebec and the Maritimes.

"The national team will get off the ground when a technical adviser is hired shortly," said Thomas. Frank Pike, the national team coach, and team manager John McMahon apparently will not have their contracts renewed.

Dettmar Cramer, former coach of the Japanese national team and assistant on the German World Cup championship team in 1970, is reported to have the inside track on the head coaching post.

Paulson Adds Closed Crown

CALGARY (CP) — Open singles champion Jamie Paulson of Toronto added the closed men's crown to his collection Sunday by downing defending champion Bruce Rollick of Burnaby in the Canadain badminton championships.

Paulson, who defeated Rollick for the open title two weeks ago, edged the three-time title holder from Burnaby 15-9, 15-12 in the final.

The Toronto champion had trouble with her returns in the first game and lost 11-2. Youngberg kept up the pressure in the remaining two games but McKinley's experience carried her to 11-9, 11-7 victories and the title.

Paulson and Yves Pare of Montreal teamed to take their fourth men's doubles title by whipping the Calgary duo of Raphi Kanchanaraphi and Channarong Ratanaeseangsuang 15-8, 15-6.

Defending champions Mimi Nilsson of Vancouver and Judi Rollick, wife of the dethroned singles champion, retained the women's doubles title by defeating McKinley and Barbara Welch of Toronto 13-11, 15-6.

Welch fared better when she teamed with Raphi to take the mixed doubles by 13-5, 15-4, 15-9 over Pare and Marj Shedd of Toronto.

Bill Hawley, who came up from the United States for the race, finished third.

Joe Barrett of Victoria, son of Premier Barrett, placed first in the "B" event over the same distance while two mainland riders, Doug Sigal and Dave Springfield, placed second and third respectively.

Muskie Slams Secrets Act

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Federal employees who put the public interest above bureaucratic secrecy would be turned into criminals under legislation to be introduced in Congress this week, according to Sen. Edmund Muskie.

Muskie said a proposed "Official Secrets Act" — which would carry penalties of three to seven years in jail and fines of $25,000 to $50,000 — will be introduced as part of President Nixon's proposed revision of the U.S. Criminal Code.

In a speech at Maryland's Frostburg State College, Muskie said the proposed law was the "latest attempt to stifle the flow of official information to the public."

"The act being proposed would punish government officials who disclosed almost any kind of defence and foreign policy information, whether or not its disclosure would endanger national security," Muskie said.

It would make it a crime for any individual who had received classified information in an authorized way or as a government employee to give it to an unauthorized person.

Present law covers only government employees who give classified information to foreign agents or members of Communist-oriented organizations, and another section covers any individual who gives certain classified information — that obtained by U.S. intelligence — to any unauthorized person.

Muskie said the proposed law was also "an attempt to set up a peacetime system of government censorship that a democracy could hardly tolerate in a time of war."

Gangster Guns Kill Corsican

MARSEILLES, France (AP) — An ex-convict of Corsican origin was fatally wounded Sunday when gangsters sprayed his rented car with automatic weapons in the heart of Marseilles. The killers escaped.

Jean-Baptiste Rossi, 44, was the fifth person killed in gangster executions in France's second-largest city within 24 hours.

Four persons, including a barmaid, were killed Saturday when three men opened fire on a crowded bar. Two other occupants of the bar were critically hurt.

SHUTDOWN LOOMS

SEATTLE (AP) — Longshoremen's union locals in Oregon and California are scheduled to hold meetings this week to discuss a suggestion by their Washington counterparts that they shut down all West Coast ports for one day to protest a proposed ban on log exports.

G. Johnny Parks, northwest regional director of the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union, said there "is a very strong possibility" of a shutdown.

Parks said ILWU president Harry Bridges will be presented with a copy of the action plan.

Parks described the issue as a "political football" and said his union "is not going to sit idly by and let it go."

An embargo would cost 3,000 longshore jobs in Washington, source of most log exports, Parks said.

Officials hinted a possible port closure could come in conjunction with a hearing on an export ban bill sponsored by Sen. Robert Packwood, scheduled for April 11 in Portland.

Land Price Rises

TOKYO (AP) — Land prices in urban Japan went up an average of 30.9 per cent in 1972, a government report said Sunday.

U.S. Booze Labels To List Ingredients

WASHINGTON (WP) — The U.S. treasury department is preparing to compel the alcoholic beverage industry to list additives and ingredients on the labels of beer, wine and liquor.

Regulations are being drafted, although "no target date" for completion has been set, a spokesman for the bureau of alcohol, tobacco and firearms said.

The bureau, a unit of the internal revenue service, assured the Food and Drug Administration at a meeting on Sept. 22 that the rules would be developed and published in January.

An FDA official said, however, that the bureau apparently underestimated the difficulties in such questions as whether the label listing should identify certain additives in their original chemical form or in their different form in which they end up in the finished product.

Pipe Plea Fails

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Supreme Court let stand today a lower-court decision blocking construction of the controversial trans-Alaska oil pipeline.

The court refused without comment or dissent an urgent federal government plea to overturn the lower court.

The court's refusal to reopen the case was described as a "major ictory" by B.C. Liberal leader David Anderson, who has headed the Canadian effort to stop the Alaska pipeline.

Anderson said the decision demonstrates that "what Nixon wants isn't necessarily what Nixon gets."

Premier Barrett sent a telegram to Prime Minister Trudeau today requesting a meeting "as soon as possible" with Energy Minister Donald Macdonald to discuss the latest court developmments in the Alaskan oil pipeline issue.

Shoppers Back Boycott

Victorians appear to be rallying behind a week-long boycott of meat which began this morning in cities across North America.

A majority of shoppers questioned this morning in supermarkets in three different areas said they were supporting the boycott, although many had doubts whether it would do much lower meat prices.

For most, the boycott was a personal decision. Few had signed the boycott petition which is being circulated in the city by a local nurse, Mrs. Margaret Addis.

About 80 per cent of shoppers questioned in a James Bay supermarket said they were not buying meat this week.

"I've been supporting the boycott for three years now," said Joyce Price.

Buying meat is "buying gold," said N. D. Chmara, another boycott supporter. "It may not do any good, but it sure won't do any harm," he said of the consumer protest.

Steve Trach signed Mrs. Addis' petition last week. He said he doesn't eat much meat anyway, so going without it one week isn't a hardship.

Linda Yardley wrote a letter to Prime Minister Trudeau Sunday protesting the high meat prices. She's going to eat fish, chicken and eggs this week.

"There's not much really (the consumer) can do," she said. "But its better than just sitting and saying the prices are too high."

Kelly Grant just arrived in Victoria Friday and hadn't heard about the boycott. When she did, she took all the meat she had in her shopping cart and put it back on the meat counter.

A few people had doubts.

"A week is hardly sufficient to make a difference," said R. C. Mason, a retired chef. "It's got to be longer for them (people in the meat business) to feel the pinch."

Mason, like many older people questioned, said he and his wife eat very little meat at any time. However, he's not boycotting this week.

Shoppers in a Cadboro Bay area supermarket all agreed it would be nice to have cheaper meat, and all were giving full support to this week's meat boycott, but for different reasons.

Mrs. Louise Walton won't buy beef this week, because "it's way to expensive," but she will be eating it.

She cuts down on costs by buying it in builk and keeps it in the freezer.

Mrs. Irene Margetts solves the problem the same way, "so the boycott won't affect me really. I think it's a good idea, but I don't think it'll do much to lower prices."

Mrs. June Sydenham, however, feels "it's about bloody time" consumers took action and she flatly states she doesn't intend to buy meat this week.

FOOD PRICE BOARD URGED

OTTAWA (CP) — The special Commons committee on food prices recommended today formation of a prices review board to watch and report on increases along the food supply chain.

The committee, in an interim report required under its terms of creation, said the review board should have the powers needed to look into the price structure and should report to the consumer affairs department. It also would make public reports to one of the standing Commons committees.

Conservative members of the committee dissociated themselves from the report and released a minority document calling for an immediate 90-day freeze on food prices after they leave the farm.

The majority report, endorsed by the 15 Liberal, New Democrat and Social Credit members of the 25-member committee, made these other main recommendations:

—Consumer protection laws, such as those dealing with misleading advertising, should be separate from consumer and corporate affairs department activities dealing with broad industrial policies, handling of monopolies and mergers and concerns about foreign investment.

—The government should consider requiring nutrient content to be displayed on food labels.

—Broadcasters and the print media should be encouraged to increase programs and stories promoting wise consumer buying habits.

—In co-operation with the provinces, Ottawa should investigate ways to get better foods on the tables of low-income families.

—Ottawa should help, by providing money, in the preparation and presentation of briefs by consumer groups to government departments and boards.

Joint Front From West

WINNIPEG (CP) — The four western premiers say they're not ganging up on the rest of Canada but they intend to present a united stand on key issues of concern to the West when they meet Prime Minister Trudeau this summer.

The premiers made it clear following their two-day meeting here they want answers, not just discussion, on national transportation policy and agriculture policy.

The premiers will prepare detailed position papers on freight rates, agriculture, banking and regional economic development for the meeting with Trudeau, tentatively scheduled for July 25-26 in Calgary. They set another meeting among themselves for June 18 in Victoria.

The premiers — New Democrats Dave Barrett of British Columbia, Allan Blakeney of Saskatchewan and Ed Schreyer of Manitoba and Conservative Peter Lougheed of Alberta — also agreed to make the Western premier's conference a permanent institution.

The final western positions on several issues were not settled at the meeting here. The premiers will publish their requests of the federal government at the time of the Victoria meeting, giving the prime minister about one month to prepare his solutions.

Barrett said: "When we meet Ottawa we want to meet on the basis of Yes or No answers to our problems. The results of this meeting is that the Calgary conference is more likely to be a two-way dialogue than a five-way conversation."

Lougheed told a news conference the premiers want more emphasis placed on the country's "growth areas."

Industrial development now is centred in southern Ontario and along the St. Lawrence, and "we want to change that."

"We want to make sure that from now on this nation grows on a much more balanced basis."

NOT IN LAOS SAYS OPPEL

Lloyd Oppel returned to his home in Comox Sunday night and told a crowd of well-wishers at the airport he had been treated "badly" during his five-month internment in a Communist prisoner of war camp in Indochina.

Before he was whisked off to St. Joseph Hospital in Comox the 21-year-old missionary told reporters that earlier news reports about his capture and imprisonment were "hoaxes propagated by the administration of North Vietnam."

Oppel's statements were brief but he told the crowd he would "fully elaborate" on his story when released from hospital.

His ailing mother is also in the hospital and Oppel had a joyful reunion with his parents at her bedside.

His father, Magnus Oppel, said today his son is suffering from "a touch of malaria" and the date of his release from hospital would be decided by their family doctor.

"He's as happy as can be," the elder Oppel said, "and he looks as well as can be expected.

Oppel arrived home at 7:20 p.m. Sunday. As he stepped off the Canadian Forces Buffalo aircraft which brought him from McCord Air Force Base in Washington, one arm clutched a small Canadian flag, the other was around his brother, Fred, who leapt up the gangway to meet him.

He said he wanted to refute earlier published reports of his capture.

"Number one, I was captured by North Vietnamese regular soldiers. I was not captured by the Pathet Lao."

"Secondly, I was interned in North Vietnam. I had never been interned in Laos.

"Thirdly, there was a rumor going around that I was told I was a collaborator with American imperialism and was treated as an American."

Bombing Hanoi Still Open: U.S.

Times News Services

The United States could resume bombing and mining the North Vietnamese heartland if Hanoi refuses to abide by the ceasefire provisions, Defence Secretary Elliot Richardson said Sunday.

The U.S. is also continuing its bombing campaign in Cambodia "to try to encourage" the Communists to observe the ceasefire in that country, Richardson said.

Richardson listed renewed bombing and other U.S. military measures used in the past as "possibilities" still open to the U.S., and indicated they were the options President Nixon had in mind when he cautioned North Vietnam recently about the "serious consequences" of continued ceasefire violations.

In Cambodia, Richardson said "the other side has only to carry out its obligations, and U.S. support — and of course it is only air support — can cease."

Richardson argued there was no need for Congressional approval of the air raids over Cambodia because "this is in effect a followup in a small and limited way of what we were doing before the ceasefire."

He said he believed it would be "very difficult in present

Guaranteed Jobs Studied By Manitoba

WINNIPEG (CP) — The NDP government has thrown up for discussion proposals for economic reforms ranging from establishment of a Manitoba banking system to a government guarantee of jobs for all who want them.

The first volume of Guidelines for the Seventies, a policy paper tabled in the legislature today by Premier Ed Schreyer, is sure to be an issue in the provincial general election expected this year.

The 147-page volume also proposes moves to encourage rural and northern areas residents to stay where they are and further redistribution of wealth through taxation based on ability to pay. A general aim is greater equality of the human condition.

It recommends substantial cuts in property taxes on farms and homes and urges increased public financing of economic growth through a local form of municipal Crown corporation and, where need is shown, through provincial Crown corporations.

Mr. Schreyer, in an accompanying statement, said the paper is not a dogmatic declaration of intent but is a set of alternative policy principles and aims, presented for analysis and discussion. Two more volumes will be released soon.

The report suggests a public involvement in industry to improve the position of low-wage workers, and development of a more even industrial balance between Manitoba's regions.

For farmers, it proposes producers' marketing boards and lowering production costs through a variety of co-operative arrangements. It also advocates public regulation of food prices to get fair prices for producers and consumers.

On natural resources, the paper says all future mineral development should take into account social as well as economic costs, and public services should be paid for by the private interests which would benefit.

STOP BUGGING PORPOISES!

WASHINGTON (UPI) Tuna fishermen have been told by the national oceanic and atmospheric administration to stop bugging porpoises.

The agency issued a new regulation Sunday prohibiting anyone from putting a radio transmitter on the back of a porpoise.

A spokesman said the action was taken because of reports that some fishermen were using the porpoises to help them track schools of tuna.

Millionaire Ordered Deported

OTTAWA (CP) — An eight-year court battle ended today when the Supreme Court of Canada ordered millionaire Robert Brooks deported from Canda.

Brooks, now living in Vancouver, came here as a landed immigrant in 1963. The immigration department accused him of giving false and misleading information in his application and after a hearing that dragged on for four years, he was ordered deported.

Brooks then appealed to the immigration appeal board which in 1971 upheld his appeal and allowed him to stay. The government then appealed to the Supreme Court.

Brooks and Harry Stonehill, his business associate, were deported from the Philippines by presidential order following accusations that they had committed a number of criminal acts ranging from fraud to influence peddling.

Late Aliens Held

Times News Service

TORONTO — About 70 people were arrested during the weekend when they appeared at Toronto immigration headquarters to register as aliens, the Toronto Star reported today.

The arrests occurred amid a rush by more than 2,000 people to register before a March 31 deadline. The deadline had been set for visitors to Canada who arrived prior to Jan. 1 and had failed to register as aliens.

Manpower and Immigration Minister Robert Andras was quoted by the Star from Ottawa as saying it was his "understanding" that those arrested had missed previous deadlines to appear for immigration hearings.

Andras was previously reported to have said the federal government would "apply a very gentle hand" to visitors without landed status who complied with the government's program of voluntary registration.

The government has estimated there are 50,000 to 100,000 persons who arrived in Canada as visitors before Jan. 1 and have overstayed their official welcome.

An official in the Victoria immigration office said there were no arrests here and the office had a "quiet" day, dealing mainly with people who wanted to clarify their status. The office stayed open until midnight.

First Socred Hopeful

BURNABY (CP) — James P. R. Mason, 50, an accountant, has become the first announced candidate to take over the leadership of the provincial Social Credit Party from W. A. C. Bennett.

The party plans to hold a leadership convention in November to pick a successor to Bennett, who has announced he will step down as leader.

Mason has been a member of the provincial Social Credit League since 1956 and is a former vice-president of the league. He was also president of the Burnaby Social Credit Association for two years.

He was also an unsuccessful Social Credit candidate in the 1963 federal election in Vancouver Quadra.

Nixon Frees Mafia Boss

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — A high-ranking leader in the Mafia "family" of the late Vito Genovese who had been tagged by the U.S. justice department as "violent . . . homicidal . . . a man who orders executions" was freed from prison last Christmas on special orders from President Nixon, according to a story in the Long Island newspaper Newsday.

According to the FBI, Angelo "Gyp" DeCarlo has gone right back to his old gambling and loansharking business.

Furthermore, FBI and justice department officials claim that the release was approved by the president without getting prior clearance from them.

"This is . . . a very bad buy," said one justice department official, "with a history of political connections all laid out on public record."

DeCarlo had served less than two years of a 12-year sentence before the release which came on the grounds of "terminal illness."

The mobster, aged 70, has a history of diabetes, heart trouble and assorted problems stemming from cancer surgery which apparently was not too successful.

"I don't care how sick he is; putting him back on the street is not a routine thing—certainly not with an administaration as tough as this one is on criminals," said the justice department man.

"Besides," he added, "the prison service has some extremely good medical facilities."

DeCarlo's illnesses, according to the FBI, have not prevented him from attending orgahized crime meetings with former associates in out-of-the-way locations since his release from jail.

The other thing puzzling law enforcement officials about DeCarlo's presidential pardon is the fact that it was one of only five granted by Nixon last year.

"Most people pardoned really went through a sieve" said the justice department man. "For a guy like DeCarlo to get through someone had to make a bigger hole."

Everything Christ Said But Without the Impact

Item: "The contemporary reader can sit down and in a single reading learn everything that is known about Jesus Christ." That was publisher Jack McClelland's promise in an advance note. But now that I've read the book, "Jesus," a synthesis of the gospels of Matthew, Mark, Luke and John, combined in one narrative and put into modern English, my guess is that it will antagonize those who are religious and simply confuse those of us who are not.

The fault it seems to me, is in "the modern English" end of it, largely the work of Charles Templeton, a communicator and popularizer by profession, who, I daresay, honestly thought that Christ's message in contemporary language would have a wide appeal.

Trouble is that it is badly done, retaining little of the mysticism or the poetic beauty of the gospels' words. When Jesus speaks in this over-simplified, pedantic way — speaks, you might say, with the voice of Chuck Templeton, boy evangelist — it may be equally upsetting to believer and heretic alike. In many a passage in this work Jesus is made to sound altogether too much like the late Dale Carnegie.

The story of Christ, as the preface notes, is a story with conflict and controversy. Christ, himself, was a disturber, a revolutionary, not the gentle Jesus, meek and mild, that the modern church so often pictures. But, though Christ's words through the gospels make this clear, it is a story curiously devoid of any quality of excitement or inspiration, and, again, the fault appears to be in the dutiful paraphrasing of his words. Like one of those Biblical roles played by Charlton Heston the effect is simply an absence of believability.

"In the Law men are told, 'Love your neighbor and hate your enemy.' But here is my teaching: love your enemies. Be kind to those who hate you and pray for your persecutors. That's the kind of behaviour that distinguishes God's family. Doesn't God let his sun shine equally on good and evil men and doesn't he let the rain fall indiscriminately on the honest and the dishonest? Treat others the way you'd like them to treat you. If you love only those who love you, what's commendable about that? Scoundrels do that . . ."

An accurate interpretation? Yes, one word after the other. A reasonable reflection of the meaning of Christ's message? Certainly. But where's the inspiration that has made this man the most influential figure in the history of Western civilization? It is simply not to be found in this book.

Item: The Academy Awards show on television tonight and I seem to have been a minority of one in thinking that Marlon Brando was a little ridiculous in refusing the Oscar as the year's best actor — an award I thought was a little ridiculous in the first place.

When Brando accepted the role of the Godfather in a film that glorified America's violence, a film that's made millions of dollars in profits because of its savage, realistic killings, it seems to me he forfeited any right to be Hollywood's bleeding heart for the motion picture industry's indignities against the American Indians.

In "Last Tango in Paris," it seems, Brando has taken a role calculated to make the bundle because of its shock effect, again, if we're to believe the British critics, unjustified by any pretensions of creative excellence. If he gets the Oscar for that who will be up there on stage to refuse it? The Happy Hooker?

Item: Two of my favorite women, one of whom I've yet to meet, are honored as "Great Dames" in the newest Maclean's and I must say they fit exactly the arbitrary definition: "Gutsy, original women . . . who are willing to grow up, to leave cuteness and compliance behind."

One is our own Alice Munro, whose novel "Lives of Girls and Women", now heading for the best seller list in the United States, is the finest piece of writing that's pleasured me in the last 10 years. Someday I'll get up enough nerve to ask her for an interview.

The other is my old friend Molly Bobak, the painter, who now lives in Fredericton, a women whose joy in living is the most contagious of any person I've known. Molly is my age, which astonishes me, but she told Maclean's interviewer: "There's always a renewal thing that comes along. It can happen at the oddest times, say just as you happen to be walking through a clump of trees by the St. John River, and you can almost jump in the air and hug your ribs . . . you're just a mass of flames, absolutely glowing. There's an enormous sense of being in tune with yourself."

My conviction that women get more out of life than men is given another boost.

Prisoners 'Counsel Counsellors'

Victoria Times
MONDAY, APRIL 2, 1973 17
SECOND SECTION

By DAVID MAY
Times Staff

John Wignall, 33, said he and another man decided to escape after they were turned down on a request to return to the B.C. Penitentiary in New Westminster where they could get "more work" and take further upgrading courses.

"You're counselling counsellors," at William Head Wignall told the court.

He and William Roy Skelton, 40, were each sentenced to six extra months by Judge William Ostler on charges of being unlawfully at large.

The two men were picked up Sunday afternoon in a Victoria hotel. They were reported missing from William Head at 11:30 Friday night.

Wignall said he viewed his future at William Head as "stagnating for another year."

Skelton told a similar story of rejected transfer applications, claiming he had asked to be returned to the penitentiary three times.

Ostler said he was surprised that the "enlightened" programs for the rehabilitation of prisoners met with such responses.

"You can't blame the public for being fed up with escapes," he said.

Skelton was serving three years for breaking and entering with intent and possession of housebreaking tools. He was due for release in May 1974.

Wignall was serving three years, two months and seven days for possession of stolen property, possession of heroin, two counts of heroin possession for the purpose of trafficking and driving a car while prohibited. He was to be released in June 1974.

The weekend's escapes brings the total to seven since Jan. 1. Of the 32 men who escaped from William Head in 1972 eight are still at large.

In March, Solicitor-general Warren Allmand announced that William Head will be changed from a minimum-security penitentiary to medium security. Fences will be raised and extended along the shoreline, extra guards are being hired, observation posts built and patrol cars being ordered.

The change of status, he said, is necessary because of overcrowded conditions in other B.C. prisons.

Metchosin residents were up in arms when William Head was made a "temporary camp" but withdrew their objections when they were assured that the institution would never be anything else than minimum-security.

Anderson Elected By Slim Margin

Malcolm Anderson, a 38-year-old stocks and bonds salesman of 3965 Telegraph Bay Road, Saanich, was sworn in as a Victoria alderman today after being elected by a narrow margin and by a fraction of Victoria's voting public.

He beat his nearest competitor out of six candidates Bob Ellis by 37 votes — 1,206 to 1,169. There was a recount.

Anderson said today he favored a policy of openness with the press and public, adding that he felt he had gained a reputation for receptiveness during his years as public relations man for his brother David Anderson, leader of the provincial Liberal Party.

He ran on a campaign of "look forward, choose carfully, and never forget that we cannot stand still," as he put it in a leaflet sent only to property-owning electors.

"Our choice is between controlled development and certain deterioration or the city . . . blending the best of the past into our plans for the future," the leaflet said.

Anderson eased some surprise among reporters and election officials by not being present for the returns Saturday night at the central polling office. He said this morning he had a prior business commitment. "I work for a living and some things you just can't pass over."

Other candidates, with the exception of election veteran Bill Scott were on hand to see the following final figures:

After Anderson and Ellis, Margaret Richards — 844; Jim Beaubien — 451; Ed Kop — 359; Bill Scott — 158.

Only 19 per cent of the 22,408 eligible voters turned out, although that was still more than elected Ald. Alf Hood in January 1972 when 17 per cent voted.

Sales Not Hit by Hike In Foreign Car Prices

Despite price increases of up to 10 per cent on foreign built cars, sales are not suffering according to import dealers in Victoria.

Currency fluctuations around the world would seem to make the imports less competitive with North American built cars, but easy credit and effective marketing are combining to maintain the imports' share of sales.

Three dealers polled by the Times agree that car buyers are not concerned enough about a few hundred dollars to suddenly decide against buying an import.

"You pick out the suit you want, and then you look at the price tag."

Another dealer believes the conventional idea of buying an import because it's cheapest does not apply to many import buyers.

Brian Holley of Brian Holley Motors Ltd. says the least expensive models are not the big sellers. Holley notes that the Swedish-built Volvo, with a basic price of $4,500, is selling better this year than ever before, despite a recent 4.5% price hike blamed on currency changes.

New money values forced a 7.1 per cent rise in the price of Volkswagen prices Feb. 13, but Egon Baumann of Douglas Volkswagen Ltd. says this has "no effect" on sales.

The Volkswagen price increase added about $200 to the bill on a basic Super Beetle, bringing it to about $2,840.

On a $5,000 Audi, the increase is about $350. Baumann and Holley both say the buying public is looking for value when it buys Audis or Volvos, so the price is not an overwhelming factor.

"I think it's got to be the concept" that people are more interested in buying, Holley says.

The Japanese imports will be hit sometime next month with a 10 per cent increase caused by revalued currencies.

"But this is only a temporary thing," says Beaulieu. By September, this competitive advantage for the American car manufacturers will be wiped out by a United Auto Workers wage settlement.

Besides, people are so adapted to price increases tied to inflation, the 10 per cent increase won't affect sales as much as might be expected.

Beaulieu points to the last increase in Japanese car prices caused by currency revaluation about a year ago.

"It didn't affect the sales . . . the demand was still that strong." People bought the cars anyway.

He points out also that earnings in British Columbia are high, people have money.

"You have to have reservations to get into a restaurant."

The April price hikes will push a Toyota Corolla from $2,190 (basic) to $2,400, a four-door Corona from $2,895 to almost $3,200.

One factor in the public's willingness to pay the new prices may be that used cars are fetching a better price. If the trade-in price is up, the two or three hundred more needed to buy a new car is not difficult to bear.

Beaulieu says some used cars are selling for the same price this year as last.

The January-February registrations of foreign-built cars in Victoria show the imports are maintaining their share of the market, Beaulieu says.

The basic factor in the price of cars is the internal economic climate of the United States, Beaulieu adds. The market here is closely affected by it.

Until the United States takes real measures to restructure its economy and currency, the demand for imports will not likely change.

At any rate, the imports shouldn't suffer any real damage until at least 1974, he says.

Labor Meet Moved Here

Labor Minister Bill King said today that a labor-management conference planned for the middle of this month at Harrison Hot Springs now will be held in Victoria.

King sai dthat because the legislative session will still be going on through the three days of the conference — April 13, 14 and 15 — he did not want to have his senior department officials out of town.

CLOSING 'ABSURD'

Attorney-General Alex Macdonald said today the closing of liquor stores on byelection days is "absurd" and that the government will be taking a "very close look" at alternative recommendations.

He was asked to comment on the situation after Saturday's aldermanic byelection in Victoria, in which only 19 per cent of the electorate voted.

Liquor stores located within city limits were closed for the day.

Macdonald said the question of liquor store hours on byelection and election days would likely be referred by the cabinet to the proposed new Liquor Board, which is being set up through amendments introduced recently to the Liquor Act.

Appointment by Minister Ends Vacancy Confusion

The vacant seat on Saanich school board has finally been filled after more than three months of confusion over appointment procedures.

Dr. Ronald Tinney, educational psychologist at the University of Victoria, topped the polls in a plebiscite held Saturday in Saanich, and Education Minister Eileen Dailly announced his appointment as trustee this morning.

Five people submitted their names for consideration in the plebiscite, which was authorized by the department of education to determine the community's choice for trustee.

According to the Public Schools Act the minister of education must appoint a trustee in such circumstances, but Dailly decided to hold a plebiscite to gauge public opinion on a successor.

Turnout was small for the plebiscite which saw only 358 or nine per cent of 4,486 possible voters cast ballots.

Final vote totals, submitted to the department of education this morning were Tinney — 124 ; Frank Machine — 105; Mrs. Margaret Protopappas — 69; Donald Grafton — 39; and Sidney Watson — 21.

Oak Bay to Pick Centre Experts

Oak Bay council is expected to decide tonight which experts it will consult on the building of the municipality's $1.6 million sports complex.

Recreation committee chairman, Ald. Douglas Watts said today that he, Alds. Norman Pimlott, Douglas McLelland and municipal engineer-planner Geoffrey White visited several mainland sports centres during the weekend.

Watts said the Coquitlam facility, built about a year ago, was superior to some of the others the group toured:

"It has a lower roof than some we saw," he said, "and had a steel deck, rather than timber."

Watts said the Coquitlam centre also had one wall of slatted wood that helped muffle noise.

"The facilities we saw with high-pitched roofs and timber decking had a tremendous noise problem," he said, "and we also found that these were faced with poor ice problems under warm weather conditions."

Watts said the centres visited had rinks that cost anywhere between $450,000 and $600,000.

"The difference in price makes quite a difference," he said, "in what kind of a building you can have.

"We have a good idea now of what we can get for our money."

In its $1.6 million budget, Oak Bay has estimated $530,000 for an ice arena and $155,000 for a lobby annex, which will service both the rink and the pool.

Levi's Home Hit by Fire

A fire at 1530 Purcell Place, the home of Norman Levi, minister of rehabilitation and social improvement, caused $1,500 damage Saturday night, a Victoria fire department official said today.

The fire broke out around 9:30 p.m. as Levi's 17-year-old daughter, Tamar, was deep-frying potatoes. Hot fat overflowed, burst into flames and set fire to kitchen cabinets.

No one was injured.

New Wing for Victoria General?

The first part of the $22.5 million hospital referendum approved by Capital Regional District ratepayers Saturday will be spent on detailed planning for improvements, regional hospital board chairman Art Young said today.

Young said he expects the first step will be requests by various hospital boards for money for future planning "so basically there will be nothing visible for 12 to 18 months."

"I hope we will be in a position to give the green light to some major renovations at Victoria General and Royal Jubilee. At Victoria General possibly an entire wing will be replaced."

Young said he was delighted at the "excellent" yes vote in Saturday's referendum but the turnout was "a little disappointing."

The referendum gained 83.8 per cent support throughout the region. There were 10,411 ballots cast, or 10.93 per cent of the eligible voters.

Only one polling station failed to give 60 per cent support to the referendum. This was North Pender Island, where 57 voted yes and 32 no, for 57 per cent.

Young said he hopes the referendum will be the last for ratepayers.

He said he will recommend to the regional board that it support a proposal to the Union of B.C. Municipalities or to Municipal Affairs Minister James Lorimer that the building of schools and hospitals be handled directly by the provincial government.

"These referendums just don't seem sensible," he said, pointing to the low turnout and adding that "the people on the Capital Regional board were all elected with more than an 11 per cent turnout. It can be argued that a decision reached at this level (about hospital building) would be perhaps more democratic than a public vote."

Muskie Slams Secrets Act

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Federal employees who put the public interest above bureaucratic secrecy would be turned into criminals under legislation to be introduced in Congress this week, according to Sen. Edmund Muskie.

Muskie said a proposed "Official Secrets Act" — which would carry penalties of three to seven years in jail and fines of $25,000 to $50,000 — will be introduced as part of President Nixon's proposed revision of the U.S. Criminal Code.

The administration contends the act would strengthen the law against leaks of classified government information.

In a speech at Maryland's Frostburg State College, Muskie said the proposed law was the "latest attempt to stifle the flow of official information to the public."

"The act being proposed would punish government officials who disclosed almost any kind of defence and foreign policy information, whether or not its disclosure would endanger national security," Muskie said.

It would make it a crime for any individual who had received classified information in an authorized way or as a government employee to give it to an unauthorized person.

Present law covers only government employees who give classified information to foreign agents or members of Communist-oriented organizations, and another section covers any individual who gives certain classified information — that obtained by U.S. intelligence — to any unauthorized person.

Muskie said the proposed law was also "an attempt to set up a peacetime system of government censorship that a democracy could hardly tolerate in a time of war."

Gangster Guns Kill Corsican

MARSEILLES, France (AP) — An ex-convict of Corsican origin was fatally wounded Sunday when gangsters sprayed his rented car with automatic weapons in the heart of Marseilles. The killers escaped.

Jean-Baptiste Rossi, 44, was the fifth person killed in gangster executions in France's second-largest city within 24 hours.

Four persons, including a barmaid, were killed Saturday when three men opened fire on a crowded bar. Two other occupants of the bar were critically hurt.

SHUTDOWN LOOMS

SEATTLE (AP) — Longshoremen's union locals in Oregon and California are scheduled to hold meetings this week to discuss a suggestion by their Washington counterparts that they shut down all West Coast ports for one day to protest a proposed ban on log exports.

G. Johnny Parks, northwest regional director of the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union, said there "is a very strong possibility" of a shutdown.

"If Congress is impressed by direct action," he said, "we'll take direct action."

Parks said ILWU president Harry Bridges will be presented with a copy of the action plan.

The longshoremen's action stemmed from proposals that Congress ban timber exports as a method of increasing domestic supplies for housing.

Parks described the issue as a "political football" and said his union "is not going to sit idly by and let it go."

An embargo would cost 3,000 longshore jobs in Washington, source of most log exports, Parks said.

Officials hinted a possible port closure could come in conjunction with a hearing on an export ban bill sponsored by Sen. Robert Packwood, scheduled for April 11 in Portland.

Land Price Rises

TOKYO (AP) — Land prices in urban Japan went up an average of 30.9 per cent in 1972, a government report said Sunday.

U.S. Booze Labels To List Ingredients

WASHINGTON (WP) — The U.S. treasury department is preparing to compel the alcoholic beverage industry to list additives and ingredients on the labels of beer, wine and liquor.

Regulations are being drafted, although "no target date" for completion has been set, a spokesman for the bureau of alcohol, tobacco and firearms said.

The bureau, a unit of the internal revenue service, assured the Food and Drug Administration at a meeting on Sept. 22 that the rules would be developed and published in January.

An FDA official said, however, that the bureau apparently underestimated the difficulties in such questions as whether the label listing should identify certain additives in their original chemical form or in their different form in which they end up in the finished product.

Pipe Plea Fails

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Supreme Court let stand today a lower-court decision blocking construction of the controversial trans-Alaska oil pipeline.

The court refused without comment or dissent an urgent federal government plea to overturn the lower court.

Thus, the justices left the future of the pipeline from Alaska's North Slope up to Congress.

The court's refusal to reopen the case was described as a "major victory" by B.C. Liberal leader David Anderson, who has headed the Canadian effort to stop the Alaska pipeline.

Anderson said the decision demonstrates that "what Nixon wants isn't necessarily what Nixon gets."

Shoppers Back Boycott

Victorians appear to be rallying behind a week-long boycott of meat which began this morning in cities across North America.

A majority of shoppers questioned this morning in supermarkets in three different areas said they were supporting the boycott, although many had doubts whether it would do much to lower meat prices.

For most, the boycott was a personal decision. Few had signed the boycott petition which is being circulated in the city by a local nurse, Mrs. Margaret Addis.

About 80 per cent of shoppers questioned in a James Bay supermarket said they were not buying meat this week.

"I've been supporting the boycott for three years now," said Joyce Price.

Buying meat is "buying gold," said N. D. Chmara, another boycott supporter. "It may not do any good, but it sure won't do any harm," he said of the consumer protest.

Steve Trach signed Mrs. Addis' petition last week. He said he doesn't eat much meat anyway, so going without it one week isn't a hardship.

Linda Yardley wrote a letter to Prime Minister Trudeau Sunday protesting the high meat prices. She's going to eat fish, chicken and eggs this week.

"There's not much really (the consumer) can do," she said. "But its better than just sitting and saying the prices are too high."

Kelly Grant just arrived in Victoria Friday and hadn't heard about the boycott. When she did, she took all the meat she had in her shopping cart and put it back on the meat counter.

A few people had doubts.

"A week is hardly sufficient to make a difference," said R. C. Mason, a retired chef. "It's got to be longer for them (people in the meat business) to feel the pinch."

Mason, like many older people questioned, said he and his wife eat very little meat at any time. However, he's not boycotting this week.

Shoppers in a Cadboro Bay area supermarket all agreed it would be nice to have cheaper meat, and all were giving full support to this week's meat boycott, but for different reasons.

Mrs. Louise Walton won't buy beef this week, because "it's way too expensive," but she will be eating it.

She cuts down on costs by buying it in builk and keeps it in the freezer.

Mrs. Irene Margetts solves the problem the same way, "so the boycott won't affect me really. I think it's a good idea, but I don't think it'll do much to lower prices."

Mrs. June Sydenham, however, feels "it's about bloody time" consumers took action and she flatly states she doesn't intend to buy meat this week.

FOOD PRICE BOARD URGED

OTTAWA (CP) — The special Commons committee on food prices recommended today formation of a prices-review board to watch and report on increases along the food supply chain.

The committee, in an interim report required under its terms of creation, said the review board should have the powers needed to look into the price structure and should report to the consumer affairs department. It also would make public reports to one of the standing Commons committees.

Conservative members of the committee dissociated themselves from the report and released a minority document calling for an immediate 90-day freeze on food prices after they leave the farm.

The majority report, endorsed by the 15 Liberal, New Democrat and Social Credit members of the 25-member committee made these other main recommendations:

—Consumer protection laws, such as those dealing with misleading advertising, should be separate from consumer and corporate affairs department activities dealing with broad industrial policies, handling of monopolies and mergers and concerns about foreign investment.

—The government should consider requiring nutrient content to be displayed on food labels.

—Broadcasters and the print media should be encouraged to increase programs and stories promoting wise consumer buying habits.

In co-operation with the provinces, Ottawa should investigate ways to get better foods on the tables of low-income families.

—Ottawa should help, by providing money, in the preparation and presentation of briefs by consumer groups to government departments and boards.

B.C. Control For Colcel

Resources Minister Bob Williams announced today the provincial government has acquired a 79-per-cent interest in Canadian Cellulose Co. Ltd., the principal subsidiary of Columbia Cellulose, a B.C. pulp-producing company.

Williams told the legislature that an agreement was signed at 1:15 p.m. today between the government, the Celanese Corporation, Columbia Cellulose Co. Ltd., Columbia Pulp Sales Ltd., Canadian Cellulose Co. Ltd., and Celgar Ltd.

The government will pay no money in return for the 79 per cent interest, Williams said, and will receive interest in an industrial complex with assets having a replacement value in excess of $200 million.

Under the terms of the agreement the Celanese Corporation will release Canadian Cellulose from its $73 million debt to the current company.

The minister said the agreement will concern a proposed crown corporation called B.C. Cellulose Ltd.

"This action by the government insures the position of the minority shareholders which would have been in jeopardy" if Columbia Cellulose operations had been sold to a firm controlled by the giant Weyerhaeuser Corporation, Williams said.

Williams told the legislature the immediate benefit to B.C. is repatriation of 9.1 million acres of land in tree-farm licence tenures.

Williams said the Canadian Cellulose operations employ 3,000 people in mills and logging. An additoonal 600 people work for logging contractors dealing with Columbia Cellulose.

"This move on the part of the government insures that the jobs of these people will be maintained including the 500 employees of the sulphite mill at Prince Rupert," he said.

NOT IN LAOS SAYS OPPEL

Lloyd Oppel returned to his home in Comox Sunday night and told a crowd of well-wishers at the airport he had been treated "badly" during his five-month internment in a Communist prisoner of war camp in Indochina.

Before he was whisked off to St. Joseph Hospital in Comox the 21-year-old missionary told reporters that earlier news reports about his capture and imprisonment were "hoaxes propagated by the administration of North Vietnam."

Oppel's statements were brief but he told the crowd he would "fully elaborate" on his story when released from hospital.

His ailing mother is also in the hospital and Oppel had a joyful reunion with his parents at her bedside.

His father, Magnus Oppel, said today his son is suffering from "a touch of malaria" and the date of his release from hospital would be decided by their family doctor.

"He's as happy as can be," the elder Oppel said, "and he looks as well as can be expected."

Oppel arrived home at 7:20 p.m. Sunday. As he stepped off the Canadian Forces Buffalo aircraft which brought him from McCord Air Force Base in Washington, one arm clutched a small Canadian flag, the other was around his brother, Fred, who leapt up the gangway to meet him.

He said he wanted to refute earlier published reports of his capture.

"Number one, I was captured by North Vietnamese regular soldiers. I was not captured by the Pathet Lao."

Secondly, I was interned in North Vietnam. I had never been interned in Laos.

"Thirdly, there was a rumor going around that I was told I was a collaborator with American imperialism and was treated as an American."

Guaranteed Jobs Studied By Manitoba

WINNIPEG (CP) — The NDP government has thrown up for discussion proposals for economic reforms ranging from establishment of a Manitoba banking system to a government guarantee of jobs for all who want them.

The first volume of Guidelines for the Seventies, a policy paper tabled in the legislature today by Premier Ed Schreyer, is sure to be an issue in the provincial general election expected this year.

The 147-page volume also proposes moves to encourage rural and northern areas residents to stay where they are and further redistribution of wealth through taxation based on ability to pay. A general aim is greater equality of the human condition.

It recommends substantial cuts in property taxes on farms and homes and urges increased public financing of economic growth through a local form of municipal Crown corporation and, where need is shown, through provincial Crown corporations.

Mr. Schreyer, in an accompanying statement, said the paper is not a dogmatic declaration of intent but is a set of alternative policy principles and aims, presented for analysis and discussion. Two more volumes will be released soon.

The report suggests public involvement in industry to improve the position of low-wage workers, and development of a more even industrial balance between Manitoba's regions.

For farmers, it proposes producers' marketing boards and lowering production costs through a variety of co-operative arrangements. It also advocates public regulation of food prices to get fair prices for producers and consumers.

On natural resources, the paper says all future mineral development should take into account social as well as economic costs, and public services should be paid for by the private interests which would benefit

Millionaire Ordered Deported

OTTAWA (CP) — An eight-year court battle ended today when the Supreme Court of Canada ordered millionaire Robert Brooks deported from Canada.

Brooks, now living in Vancouver, came here as a landed immigrant in 1963. The immigration department accused him of giving false and misleading information in his application and after a hearing that dragged on for four years, he was ordered deported.

Brooks then appealed to the immigration appeal board which in 1971 upheld his appeal and allowed him to stay. The government then appealed to the Supreme Court.

Brooks and Harry Stonehill, his business associate, were deported from the Philippines by presidential order following accusations that they had committed a number of criminal acts ranging from fraud to influence peddling.

Bombing Hanoi Still Open: U.S.

Times News Services

The United States could resume bombing and mining the North Vietnamese heartland if Hanoi refuses to abide by the ceasefire provisions, Defence Secretary Elliot Richardson said Sunday.

The U.S. is also continuing its bombing campaign in Cambodia "to try to encourage" the Communists to observe the ceasefire in that country, Richardson said.

Richardson listed renewed bombing and other U.S. military measures used in the past as "possibilities" still open to the U.S., and indicated they were the options President Nixon had in mind when he cautioned North Vietnam recently about the "serious consequences" of continued ceasefire violations.

In Cambodia, Richardson said "the other side has only to carry out its obligations, and U.S. support and of course it is only air support, can cease."

Richardson argued there was no need for Congressional approval of the air raids over Cambodia because "this is in effect a follow-up in a small and limited way of what we were doing before the ceasefire."

He said he believed it would be "very difficult in present

Joint West Front

WINNIPEG (CP) — The four western premiers say they're not ganging up on the rest of Canada but they intend to present a united stand on key issues of concern to the West when they meet Prime Minister Trudeau this summer.

The premiers made it clear following their two-day meeting here they want answers, not just discussion, on national transportation policy and agriculture policy.

The premiers will prepare detailed position papers on freight rates, agriculture, banking and regional economic development for the meeting with Trudeau, tentatively scheduled for July 25-26 in Calgary. They set another meeting among themselves for June 18 in Victoria.

The premiers — New Democrats Dave Barrett of British Columbia, Allan Blakeney of Saskatchewan and Ed Schreyer of Manitoba and Conservative Peter Lougheed of Alberta — also agreed to make the Western premier's conference a permanent institution.

The final western positions on several issues were not settled at the meeting here. The premiers will publish their requests of the federal government at the time of the Victoria meeting, giving the prime minister about one month to prepare his solutions.

Nixon Frees Mafia Boss

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — A high-ranking leader in the Mafia "family" of the late Vito Genovese who had been tagged by the U.S. justice department as "violent . . . homicidal . . . a man who orders executions" was freed from prison last Christmas on special orders from President Nixon, according to a story in the Long Island newspaper Newsday.

Furthermore, FBI and justice department officials claim that the release was approved by the president without getting prior clearance from them.

"This is . . . a very bad buy," said one justice department official, "with a history of political connections all laid out on public record."

DeCarlo had served less than two years of a 12-year sentence before the release which came on the grounds of "terminal illness."

The mobster, aged 70, has a history of diabetes, heart trouble and assorted problems stemming from cancer surgery which apparently was not too successful.

"I don't care how sick he is, putting him back on the street is not a routine thing — certainly not with an administration as tough as this one is on criminals," said the justice department man.

"Besides," he added, "the prison service has some extremely good medical facilities."

DeCarlo's illnesses, according to the FBI, have not prevented him from attending organized crime meetings with former associates in out-of-the-way locations since his release from jail.

The other thing puzzling law enforcement officials about DeCarlo's presidential pardon is the fact that it was one of only five granted by Nixon last year.

"Most people pardoned really went through a sieve" said the justice department man. "For a guy like DeCarlo to get through someone had to make a bigger hole."
